CONFESSES COCHRAN KILLING

Murder Told—The slaying of Frances Marie Cochran, 19-year-old Lynn bookkeeper whose ravished body was found in a lonely lovers' lane in July, 1941, has been confessed by John L. (Limey) Wilson of Charlestown, now under indictment for the slaying of three women.

Germans Go All Out To Hold Rome Grip

By SID FEDER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, May 31 (AP) — British troops advancing through dense mine fields on the coastal flank of the Fifth Army line have reached a point just south of Pescarella Nuova, 14 miles from the outskirts of Rome, headquarters announced today.

Elsewhere the Fifth Army beat against an unyielding wall of enemy resistance. An Allied communique said: "It is now clear that the enemy's intent is to hold this line at all costs"—the line reaching inland below Rome.

Boring away on the left flank, the British have crossed the Motta river all along the coastal sector. They worked their way through the village of L'Americano, on the coast, 18 airline miles from the mouth of the Tiber. They also occupied Ardea, two and a half miles east and slightly south of Campo Iemini, coastal terminus of the German fortress wall extending through Velletri to Valmontone, key to the Via Casilina, 36 miles southeast of Rome.

BATTLE YARD BY YARD

Americans fought virtually yard by yard into the outskirts of Villa Crocetta, just southeast of the bulwarked town of Lanuvio, in the Alban hills 16 miles southeast of Rome.

The Eighth Army wheeled steadily forward against enemy rearguards through the mountains of Central Italy, occupying such towns as Alfedena, Fontana Strangolalli, Pofi, Ceccano and Arpino and closing to within four miles of Frosinone — a major exit for the desperately-placed Nazis on that sector of the front.

(The German radio reported "dramatic street fighting" in Velletri, strongpoint 18 miles southeast of Rome, and said the stubborn fighting there was pinning down heavy Allied forces and "enables us gradually to move back the German front on the central and eastern sector."

"MOVEMENT BACKWARDS"

"German troops are also retreating at Alfedena in the Upper Sangro valley in the course of a general movements backwards," the report said. A big tank battle was reported around Lanuvio, midway point of the German line from Valmontone to the sea. The Nazis said 8 of 200 Fifth Army tanks were smashed. The enemy said American troops were being buried beneath ruins of buildings which Nazi shock troops were blowing up in Velletri. "The battle south of Rome seems nearing its climax," the report added.

Allied troops were closing a ring around Frosinone, provincial capital some 45 airline miles from Rome at the function of Highway 6 and a highway leading northward.

Carrying the current Allied offensive to its farthest inland point, Eighth Army troops captured Alfedena, highway junction northeast of Isernia in almost the exact geographical center of the Italian peninsula.

In the drive through the Liri valley the Eighth Army occupied Strangolagalli, Fontana and Arpino, while farther to the north New Zealanders were reported closing in from the south and southeast on Sora and Highway 82.

Fierce fighting Goums reached important high ground at Carpineto, south of Highway 6 and 13 miles west-southwest of Frosinone.

Allied airmen took a continuing heavy toll of enemy troops withdrawing before the Eighth Army. One RAF wing alone destroyed 97 vehicles and damaged scores more when a Nazi traffic jam was spotted in the vicinity of Subiaco, on the secondary road northward from Frosinone.

ITALY—British on the Italian seacoast have taken L'Americano and Ardea while other troops have fought to the outskirts of Pescarella Nuova. On the right wing of the front, British forces have closed on Frosinone, and French Moroccan troops have reached Carpineto.

BIAK ISLAND — Yanks who landed at Bosnek today continued a drive toward the three Jap air bases of Mokmer, Sorido and Borokoe after repulsing a tank attack by the Japs. Jap airfield at Soreoi, on nearby Japen, has been bombed by Yank planes.

Biak Japs Tough

By J. B. KRUEGER

Associated Press War Editor

In new bursts of power the Japanese are strongly resisting Americans invading Biak Island off New Guinea and are developing swiftly their offensive to seize China's Hankow-Canton railway, Allied announcements revealed today.

The two enemy forces on these fronts 2500 miles apart had the same objective—to prevent Allied exploitation of new bases nearer Japan.

Offering the fiercest resistance Gen. MacArthur has met in months, the Japanese threw tanks, planes and first-class troops into the battle for Mokmer airdrome on Biak, which is only 880 miles from the Philippines. They crouched in caves and behind tree-protected ridges. Heavy rifle, machine-gun, mortar and artillery fire pinned down MacArthur's Sixth Army troops two miles from the field.

Thrilling eyewitness story of Biak battle on page 12.

The Americans countered with destroyer bombardment, planes, tanks and infantry. The Japanese acknowledged officially today for the first time that Biak had been invaded and that "severe fighting is now in progress."

A Tokyo radio broadcast, beamed in English to North America, said:

"On Saturday morning, a powerful enemy force landed on Biak island. Our garrison on the island and our air force in the vicinity intercepted the enemy and severe fighting is now in progress."

The broadcast said "results so far attained by our air force are a cruiser and a transport vessel instantly sunk, six or seven amphibian trucks and other vessels sunk, three warships, including one large vessel, and three amphibian trucks damaged and set ablaze."

A later broadcast, to the Japanese people, this time said an aircraft carrier — instead of a cruiser—had been sunk.

The Chinese high command said a Japanese force breached a defense line 40 miles from Changsha on the Hankow-Canton railroad. This fourth Chinese defense of the key rail city was producing heavy casualties, Chungking said.

In the Central Pacific U. S. airmen struck Saipan in the Mariana Islands in the second land-based raid of the war against this outpost.

Sky Invasion Hits New Peak

By AUTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON, May 31 (AP)—Strong fleets of American bombers bored deep into Europe today in the wake of overnight assaults by the RAF, and Berlin radio broadcasts indicated that Germany was being blasted for the fifth successive day—a new record in the Allied aerial offensive.

There were indications that some of the U. S. daylight raiders had penetrated to Berlin itself. German radio stations warned that enemy fighter formations were over Brandenburg province and that other Allied planes appeared over the Brunswick-Hanover area.

Size of the daylight formations was indicated by reports from the British southeast coast that outward bound bombers had been heard passing overhead in a steady procession for more than an hour.

The RAF's overnight attacks were concentrated on military installations along the French invasion coast, but Mosquito bombers penetrated into Germany to blast the chemical center of Leverkusen. Not a plane was lost in the operations, which also included mine-laying in enemy waters.

So heavy was the assault on the French Coast—apparently concentrated on the area between Boulogne and Dunkerque—that buildings on the English side of the channel trembled from the blasts.

BULLETIN

LONDON, May 31 (INS)—American Fortresses and Liberators, striking with "medium-sized forces," and escorted by more than 1200 fighters, attacked railway yards at four places in Germany and an airdrome near Mulhouse in occupied France today.

Nazis Dent Red Line in Romania

LONDON, May 31 (AP)—German forces have broken the six weeks lull in land fighting on the long eastern front by making a small dent in Russian lines north of Iasi in Romania, a Moscow communique said today.

The Nazis opened the attack with "large forces of tanks and infantry" but succeeded in making only "an insignificant wedge into our defense" at a cost of "heavy losses in men and material," the broadcast communique declared.

Although the German attacks were described as sharp, a dispatch from Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press war correspondent in Moscow, said they appeared to be an attempt to upset Russian troop concentrations rather than the beginning of a real enemy offensive. It still was too early, however, Gilmore said, to estimate their full significance.

Moscow reported fighting northwest of Vitebsk in White Russia in the north, declaring Red army troops beat back a German drive, killing 400 of the enemy.

Patriots Told of Nazi Fire Plot

LONDON, May 31 (AP)—German propaganda pronouncements that the Nazis will apply the scorched earth policy ahead of Gen. Eisenhower's invasion armies coincided last night with an Allied fire-fighting talk to the European underground.

In the fifth of a series of broadcasts by supreme headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force, a spokesman for Gen. Eisenhower told patriots across the channel to keep their fire control units ready because the fire danger in the battle zones will be great from bombs, artillery and "German incendiarism."

The underground also was reminded to brush up on its first aid because "the war may well pass quickly and leave its casualties behind."

As the German propaganda mill churned out its assortment of fact and fancy, much of it obviously designed to bring fear to the waiting invasion forces, a roundabout and suspect report told of the killing of five American airmen in Germany "by agitated people."

This story came from the Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet, who said it was told to him by "a traveler from Leipzig."

Two German planes, apparently on flights over Britain to have a look at invasion preparations, were shot down yesterday.

Fine invasion weather continued. Scattered clouds hung over Dover strait today, but an early haze lifted during the forenoon and visibility was fair.

Toward noon the weather changed, with banks of cloud rolling in from the French coast and hiding the sun at times. The breeze dropped off but the temperature remained moderate.

Wilson Admits Cochran Killing

By JOHN H. NOONAN

(Copyright, 1944, by the Boston Record-American)

John L. (Limey) Wilson, 28, of Charlestown, under indictment for the slaying of three women, has confessed the murder of Frances Marie Cochran, 19, of Lynn, the Boston Record-American learned today.

His confession involves a second man who is already behind bars.

The slaying of the beautiful Lynn girl, whose body was found in a lonely lovers' lane three miles from her home, has been New England's major mystery since its perpetration on July 17, 1941.

Wilson confessed last Friday to Special Officer Cyril Montgomery of Station 15, Charlestown. Montgomery is the detective who originally arrested him last March.

The confession was made in Charles Street Jail where Wilson is waiting trial in connection with the killings of Mrs. Catherine McGinley, aged recluse, and Mrs. Alice D. Sheridan, both of Charlestown, and Mrs. Mary Belle Hanson of the South End.

Before his indictment in the other cases Wilson had been questioned for hours by Boston and Lynn authorities about the Cochran case but had maintained a stout denial that he had any knowledge of it.

Establish Link

The nature of his other crimes and the fact that he once had worked for an express company making deliveries at the Lynn leather company where Frances Cochran was employed pointed to him as a suspect.

Last week he sent for Montgomery and changed his story.

Wilson told police that he and the second man, whom he named, stole a car and drove to Lynn on the afternoon of July 17, three years ago.

In Marianna st. near Miss Cochran's home, they accosted her soon after she alighted from a trolley returning from work, enticed her to the car, seized her and drove to the wooded road where her body was found three days later.

There, Wilson said, they attacked the girl, killing her and leaving her in the underbrush beside the lane.

They removed from her wrist a Banner watch, of Swiss movement, which had been a Junior High graduation present from her parents.

They fled to New York, the confession relates, and there pawned the watch.

Wilson told how the car was disposed of.

Secret Police Parley

This was the old "square-backed" car witnesses had reported seeing Miss Cochran enter at the place Wilson named, but no witness ever had told of seeing more than one man in it.

Wilson's confession resulted in a five-star secret police conference at the Hotel Manger last Friday evening.

A suite registered to Capt. Louis DiSessa of the Charlestown division was occupied by Commissioner Sullivan, Superintendent Fallon, DiSessa, Montgomery and others.

The authorities were wary of the confession and took every precaution to guard against the secret leaking out.

They suspected Wilson might be lying in an effort to delay his trial in Suffolk County. But there was strong circumstantial evidence backing him up. One of his other victims had been burned, as Frances Cochran was burned. Two had been criminally assaulted, as she had been.

The upshot of the meeting was a decision to turn the Wilson statement over to Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg of Essex County, who has directed the Cochran investigation since discovery of the murder.

Hunts Watch in N. Y.

Montgomery will be sent to New York in an effort to trace the watch. Wilson gave a general idea of the location of the pawnshop where he said the watch was put up.

Questioning of Wilson's claimed companion in crime was delayed.

Wilson has been an enigma to the authorities since Montgomery first took him into custody three months ago for questioning about the first of the three crimes with which he has officially been charged.

He is a thin-faced, dark-eyed, black-haired, black-hearted addict of marihuana cigarettes (reefers), and the abrupt stopping of the narcotic threw him into varying moods of depression, defiance and boastful hinting at bigger crimes than the police suspected.

Tosses "Red Herring"

In the beginning he admitted nothing. He was gradually broken to a confession in each of the three cases for which he stands indicted. When he was shown pictures of the slain Lynn girl he was unmoved and said:

"You'll never pin that one on me."

Right in the midst of his original questioning about the Cochran case he tossed out what may have been a red herring in an admission that shortly before his arrest he had thrown a pick-up girl off a bridge near the Wedgmere railroad station in Winchester.

Police shoveled snow for 12 hours in the vicinity seeking a body that wasn't there, though Wilson did not say he knew the girl was dead. Such an attack could have taken place without being fatal and without being reported by the victim. The story at the time did serve to take the pressure off Wilson in the Cochran case.

Wilson has confessed, police say, that he killed Mrs. Catherine McGinley, 85-year-old widow of Edgeworth st., Charlestown, on Nov. 23, 1942. She was a neighbor. Robbery was the motive. She was beaten to death in her home after being tortured to make her reveal the hiding place of money. Indicted with Wilson for that murder is Francis J. Murray, also of Charlestown.

Second Man Indicted

Wilson also named Murray, who was indicted with him for the slaying of Mary Hanson, one time beauty, in a South End cellar excavation last Feb. 18. Rape was the motive in that case.

Wilson was named in a third indictment as an accessory after the fact of the murder of Mrs. Alice D. Sheridan last March 6 in the same house where Mrs. McGinley was killed. Charged with the actual murder of Mrs. Sheridan is Samuel W. Gilmore, of Ferrin st., Charlestown. Mrs. Sheridan was criminally assaulted before she was slain and Wilson is accused of aiding Gilmore in an attempt to dispose of her body. The attempt failed because the body became wedged in an alley fence.

If Frances Cochran had known Wilson by sight from his express deliveries at the Lynn firm where she worked, she might conceivably have accepted the offer of "a lift home" from him on the night she vanished in the old car in Marianna st., near Chatham st., not to be seen alive again.

The type of car described by witnesses had small windows and a man in the rear seat, especially one crouching down, might easily have escaped the cursory notice of those who paid any attention to the car.

A weak point in the Wilson story would appear to be the fact that at the time of the crime police had no report of a stolen car that answered the description given by witnesses. As an old Bunker Hill looper, Wilson was adept at the misappropriation of autos, but loopers usually choose newer, faster machines.

Stops Near Home

Frances Cochran's home was at 54 Webster st., Lynn. She was employed as bookkeeper at the Dudley Leather Co., Union st., Lynn.

On the night she was slain she shopped for a dress in downtown Lynn; she had a dancing date. She took the bus that arrived at the stop nearest her home about 6 p. m., and she vanished a few minutes later.

When she was still missing on July 20 her mother broadcast an appeal for her over radio station WESX, Salem, and 40 minutes later an anonymous telephone call made to the station sent police on the search that disclosed the crime.

She had been strangled and bludgeoned and there were burns on her neck and face that pathologists said might have been caused by a blow torch. An eight-inch stick of swamp alder had been thrust into her mouth.

More than 1000 persons were interviewed during the investigation that followed but no good clue ever was turned up.

Cashier Seized in Theft

Only an hour after he vanished from his job, James Whittaker, 46, of Rose st., South End, a cashier at a Scollay sq. restaurant, was arrested in a South End lodging house today and charged with larceny of more than $100 in receipts.

Daughters Aid Gypsy' Seers

By ALICE BISSELL

This is not a portrait of a gypsy.

A nut-brown maiden with sparkling teeth, singing haunting songs and dancing with tambourine; who tells enchanting, harmless lies with her black, wild eyes; gaily dressed in clothes she stole by the light of the moon from rich folks' clotheslines, as the gypsy did in story books.

I too, had such a foolish, romantic notion when some small children in the streets told Helen Weller and me where we could find fortune-tellers in Fall River.

"Down that street!" they said. "Real honest to goodness ones! They can tell everything. Sailors go now to see if their ships will be blown up. We'll start going when we get big!"

Gypsy fortune-tellers abound in the city, most of them along one main street. They practise their art wide open, and are as serious a case for the sanitary department as for the expose of the fortune-telling racket by this newspaper.

LIVE IN SHOPS

Helen Weller and I, posing as wives of servicemen overseas, found that most of the gypsies lived in small ground-floor shops, their "homes" easily recognized by dirty colored hangings in the windows.

The filth and odor of the first gypsy's shops was only exceeded by herself. Although it was 11 in the morning, she had risen from bed to let us in. She wore the dirty skirt she had slept in, with only a shawl falling off her shoulders. Her hair was long, black, and snarled. Her fingernails were black; her teeth yellow with decay. She was barefoot. When she spoke, her voice was thick and rattling as though with a throat disease.

There was no fresh air, and only a few rays of light came through gaudy curtains into the room where, on a huge bed, numberless small children snored in a heap like puppies. They lay on bare mattresses with no blankets. A two-year-old boy crawled on the floor with no clothes on and played with a dirty dog. A 10-year-old girl sat on the sofa, silently watching Helen and me.

The gypsy took me to the back of the room where she did her reading, separated from the children by a curtain. On the floor were crusts of bread.

"You rich? You work?" the gypsy asked.

"I am not rich. I work," I said.

BEGS FOR GIFTS

"Someday you will remember me and send me a nice gift and pretty clothes for the children," was her first vision of the future.

"I didn't come here to be told these nice things about long trips and rosy futures," I interrupted. "My husband is missing in action. I want you to tell me if he is dead or alive."

"He is not dead. I see it in the palm of your hand."

"His arms are blown off," she said in her childish way.

"What about his legs, his eyes, his mind?" I asked.

Coaxed a bit, she conceded calmly that he was wretchedly sick and that he had lost his eyesight and his mind.

I went into the front room in disgust while Helen had her reading.

I spoke with the little girl, who talked in her rightful innocent way about hard boiled things she half understood.

"I gyp the sailors," she said, using the word derived from the traits of her people. "Sometimes I tell fortunes all night long. I get drunk sailors and get a lot of money because when they're drunk they don't know what they're doing. When they come in from sea they have a lot of money, and they want to know if their boats are going to be blown up. I tell 'em."

When Helen told the gypsy woman that her husband was overseas and that she hadn't heard from him for five months, she uttered a lot of mumbo-jumbo and went through the same business of magic charms and pennies.

"He was hurt, but he'll be all right," said the gypsy to Helen.

She told Helen to return next week, when she would be able to tell exactly when a letter would come. She said to be sure and bring some pretty gifts.

For $2 another gypsy read our fortunes and state of mind, and for an extra $2 promised a cure that would make our wishes come true.

DAUGHTER HELPS

The big, dirty woman had been telling fortunes all her life. Her 16-year-old daughter, also a palm-reader when business was rushing, listened to jazz records on a deluxe victrola as she lolled on the sofa of their "home", a vacant store.

"You are joyous through the face, but sad through the heart. You are hurt by something. You cannot eat. Your brain whirls like a drunkard's," the gypsy told me.

"Yes, that is so," I replied. "Because my husband is missing in the war. I have reason to believe he is dead."

"There are no injuries in your palm. Your husband is not dead. There are many missing in the war, and there is much stupid worry about them." She squinted, and whispered, "You really want to be sure of luck for him?"

"My wish must come true if I am to live," I said.

She told me to return the following week, because on a certain night she had to prepare a secret formula which would bring him back safely.

When I told her that this was impossible, she summoned her greasy daughter, who rummaged around in a box of pots, junk, ribbons, waste paper and tin cans. They babbled together in gypsy lingo, trying, I suppose, to put something over on me. They produced a religious charm inscribed in French.

"What do the words mean?" I asked.

DOESN'T KNOW

This stumped her. She didn't know, but if I held it in my hands each Friday at noon and wished, he would be home soon.

To Helen, worrying about her husband who hadn't written for five months, the gypsy said he was a prisoner, that he was in danger, but that there was no death. She went through the same hocus-pocus of charms and cures, and told us both to return for further information.

Tomorrow Helen Farlow tells about her unusual experience with an "Oriental" fortune teller.

Big Rubber Fire Cause Is Puzzle

STOUGHTON, May 31—Fire authorities were unable to account today for the start of the spectacular general alarm blaze which burned 1000 bales of rubber, delayed the passing of a North Easton to Boston train for three hours, and gave firemen a five-hour battle.

Visible for miles and attracting a large throng, the fire threatened to spread to the buildings of the Nasher Manufacturing Co., the Potter-Harris mill and the Immaculate Conception Church. A shift of wind removed the danger.

The rubber scrap, tied in 300-pound bales, covered an entire lot adjacent to the Monk st. railroad tracks, and firemen estimated there were at least 1000 bales, owned by the Panther Rubber Co.

Secret Conference Delays Noxon Trial

By PAULINE WARREN

PITTSFIELD, May 31—A lengthy secret conference by Judge Abraham E. Pinanski and counsel for both sides delayed opening of court today for the trial of John F. Noxon, charged with murdering his defective infant son, Lawrence.

None of the spectators of 150 talesmen awaiting the calling of jurors, had an inkling of the conference's nature. The discussion was being held in Judge Pinanski's chamber.

Noxon, whose first trial was halted last March by the illness of a juror, arrived from the jail in a taxicab at 9:35. He was guarded by a deputy sheriff.

Despite his nine months' in jail, he was tanned and appeared in good health. He walked into court with the two canes he has used since he was stricken with infantile paralysis on his return from World War I.

WIFE SMARTLY DRESSED

The 47-year-old corporation lawyer was taken at once to a jury room. His wife arrived 10 minutes later and joined him to await the outcome of the conference of judge and counsel.

Mrs. Noxon was smartly dressed in navy blue, with a white blouse and blue baret. Accompanying her were her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kennedy of Auburn, N. Y.

The trial was due to be opened with prayer by the Rev. Floyd Roberts, pastor of the South Congregational Church.

Noxon and the state are represented by the same array of legal talent which conducted the first trial. Former Gov. Joseph B. Ely heads the defense, aided by Walter R. Donovan and Michael Eisner.

Dist. Atty. Charles R. Alberti, with his assistants, Alfred W. Bettigole and Velmore O. Cote, are prosecuting.

BRING IN EXHIBITS

Brought into court was a large trunk containing the state's many exhibits, admitted in evidence before the mistrial was called. It has been under guard of state police for the last three months on order of the court.

Noxon's defense has not changed, according to defense counsel. He maintains that his son, a Mongoloid baby of six months, was electrocuted accidentally when he came in contact with a defective wire while seated on a metal tray. The death occurred last Sept. 22.

It was expected that members of the jury would be taken for a view of the spacious Noxon home, as were the previous 12 jurors.

Dorsey Gaming Trial Resumes

The trial of Capt. John A. Dorsey, formerly of the Charlestown station, resumed at police headquarters today before a trial board of Capts. James T. Sheehan, James F. Daley and James J. Hinchey.

Polygamous Vet Faces Mind Test

John E. Ferguson, 26, former Army sergeant, of Franklin st., Cambridge, was committed to Psychopathic Hospital for ten days' observation after he pleaded guilty today to polygamy charges in Cambridge court.

Ferguson, who was discharged from the service for stomach trouble, was arrested by Inspector John A. Ackerley of Cambridge police when Wife No. 2, the former Gladys P. Bradbury, 25, of Maine, told about opening her husband's mail and allegedly finding a year-old letter from Wife No. 1 begging for a divorce.

J. E. Ferguson

Ackerley quoted Ferguson as telling him he didn't remember having married his first wife, Miss Juanita Jane Bowman of Johnston, Ohio, May 15, 1941. One child is said to have been born of that marriage.

Police charged that without benefit of divorce he married his present wife, April 3, 1943, at Ft. Meyer, Arlington.

The telltale letter, opened by the wife from Maine, had followed Ferguson from camp to camp all over the country. She said she hid it in a trunk but that it later vanished.

On Ackerly's advice, she wrote to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Washington, seeking information as to her husband's first marriage, and received back a certified copy of his marriage certificate.

Ferguson, according to police, said he was the "Re E. Ferguson" whose name was on the marriage certificate, but that he was usually known as John Eugene Ferguson.

Hunt 2 Escaped Nazi Prisoners

FT. DEVENS, May 31—In the first escape of its kind in Massachusetts, two German prisoners of war were sought throughout New England today after breaking loose from the stockade here at the base prisoner of war camp.

The FBI, state and local police joined in the six-state hunt while military police and guards searched thoroughly the Ft. Devens area.

Han Becker Theodor Verborg

Details of the escape were not disclosed by Edward A. Soucy, chief of the Boston FBI bureau, who said the prisoners were wearing blue dungarees with prisoner of war insignia "PW" in orange colors, or OD uniforms marked "PW."

Soucy gave out the folowing description:

Hans Becker, aged 27; 5 feet 9 inches; 161 pounds; brown eyes, dark skin, black hair, clean shaven, with a recent surgical stitch on his right middle finger.

Theodor Verborg, aged 24; 5 feet 5¼ inches; 142 pounds; brown eyes, light skin, blonde hair, clean shaven with a cancerous growth on his right hand.

Persons with information concerning the men were urged to communicate at once with the nearest FBI office.

Old Wagons Lost In $75,000 Fire

A rare collection of ancient coaches, carriages and wagons of a bygone era was demolished today when fire caused nearly $75,000 damage to the famous Henderson brothers barn in Ridge st., Winchester.

Francis R. Henderson, last of the three well-known carriage manufacturers, said the three-story, stone-walled stable was destroyed inside, and that scores of autos and trucks were burned with the antiques.

Woburn and Arlington fire apparatus were called to help when flames ignited a nearby woodland.

FBI Nabs 94 in Huge Hingham Welding Fraud

Assertedly shattering one of the largest war fraud rings thus far in the war, U. S. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon today announced the arrest of 94 present and former employes of the Bethlehem-Hingham Shipyard—with the number expected to go well above 100 before the day ended.

The men were rounded up by FBI agents and deputy U. S. marshals for arraignment in federal court on charges of conspiring to defraud the government in a total expected to run more than $500,000.

Those taken into custody were piece work welders and counters of the piece work. According to the government allegation they had banded into a series of "clubs" with the straight-salary counters of the piece work certifying falsely that the welders had performed more work than actually accomplished, and the welders splitting the extra pay with the counters.

$75 WEEKLY EXTRA PAY

According to Brandon and Chief FBI Agent Edward J. Soucy, in charge of the New England area, probe of the alleged frauds has been under way for several months.

Issuance of the complaints in Boston was authorized by the war sections, criminal division, of the Department of Justice, after the investigation in which, federal authorities stated, the Bethlehem-Hingham Co. officials co-operated fully.

In some cases, counters allegedly received as high as $75 a week extra by the manipulation of the welders' work count. According to Soucy, some of the welders claim they were "high-pressured" into the illegal clubs by threats that the counters would give them short count on work performed.

30 FRAUD CLUBS

The probe, Soucy said, revealed the accused workers had formed about 30 such clubs, each comprising one or two counters and a group of welders varying in number from three to 30.

In one of the clubs, he stated, two counters operated jointly to give false credits on the tally slips of 21 different welders.

In this group, 19 of the 21 welders paid one or the other of the counters $5 each a week for the false tally, while the remaining two welders paid $5 jointly.

Thus the two counters controlling that club, Soucy explained, split $100 a week in addition to salary.

In some cases, Soucy said, a number of the men arrested and still to be arrested would be charged specifically with causing false claims to be presented to the government, rather than with conspiracy.

ALL FACE PRISON

He explained that in those cases it was the practice of the accused welders to make false claims individually as to their production without connivance of the counters.

In other instances, according to the FBI chief, the welders submitted claims for high rates of pay for special types of welding when, in fact, the operations actually performed entitled them to a lesser rate.

Workers charged with conspiracy to defraud the government faced a maximum penalty of two years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine on each charge.

Those charged with actually causing the false claims to be presented could receive, Soucy said, as high as 10 years, as well as a $10,000 fine, for each violation.

Following the initial arrests, W. H. Collins, general manager of the shipbuilding company, issued a statement in which he said:

"The arrest today by the FBI of certain welders and piece work counters who are employes or former employes of the Bethlehem-Hingham Shipyard, Inc., should go a long way in solving a problem toward the solution of which the company for a long time has been devoting its fullest efforts.

WARNING TO OTHERS

"We have had for many months a triple checking system enabling us to detect any irregularities. This system from time to time has brought to light certain dishonest practices on the part of certain welders and piece-work counters; and various employes have been discharged.

"The bringing of offenders to justice by the FBI should be a serious warning to others.

"On behalf of our 20,000 employes at Bethlehem-Hingham, I would like to point out that the number of these offenders is a small percentage of the total.

"The FBI has done a real service in attempting to clear up a situation which otherwise might reflect upon the entire personnel."

Arraign 2 Sailors In Police Battle

Two merchant seamen faced court action today following their capture after a wild melee in which three patrolmen and a civilian were injured.

Assaulted when he encountered the seamen attempting to break into a parked auto, Patrolman William Horan, accompanied by Patrolmen Carl Tammi and James Denehy, later located the pair hiding in a doorway in Bay State rd., Back Bay.

In the struggle which ensued, Tammi suffered a broken hand and the other officers were cut and bruised. While attempting to locate the men the officers encountered Laurence Brooks, 48, of Bay State rd., who had been savagely beaten by two sailors who attempted to rob him.

5000 See Disobedient Deer Battled to Death by His Dad

NEW YORK, May 31 (INS)—A young buck, weighing only 100 pounds and but three-quarters grown, was dead in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, today because he defied parental authority, exercised by his stately father, Black Rajah, with his 18-inch antlers.

The deer, which had been browsing peacefully in the Asiatic deer pasture, began their fight to the death when the young buck, Joey, teased one of his three sisters. Black Rajah looked disapprovingly at his son and shoved him away with his antlers when Joey persisted in annoying his sister.

Finally the patriarchal deer struck at his son and the offspring hit back. The original crowd of 1500 which had been watching the deer, swelled to 5000. Joey fought bravely but vainly against his parent, then tried to leap a 15-foot fence. He went up about 8 feet and fell back to the ground. Two zoo attendants carried him to the deerhouse where ether was administered to put Joey out of his misery.

Bricker Favors Balanced Budget

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 31 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker, who is seeking the Republican presidential nomination, says that in order to be a powerful influence in world affairs the United States must "build our own house upon the solid rock of financial solvency, equity and justice."

The Ohio governor told the 36th Governors' Conference that "in my judgment, the pre-war federal policy of spend, waste borrow and tax will wreck American economy if continued in the postwar period."

Saying that the federal budget should be balanced "at the earliest possible date," he recommended that Congress, the States and local governments co-operate to set up a stable tax system without overlapping.

Bricker maintained that balancing the federal budget would give more jobs to returning soldiers "than all the made-work the government could possibly plan."

U.S. to Offer World Police Plan

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—The United States is prepared to put forth at the forthcoming Big Four meeting here a plan for an international security organization patterned on the League of Nations and providing a consultative formula for the use of force to suppress war.

By this formula each nation would retain final authority over its own troops, planes and ships and would assign no direct power over them to the International Agency. The agency after consultations among its members, could recommend, but not order, that a member nation use its troops for international police duty.

The only binding commitment on this vital point would be one which in effect has already been made in the Moscow four-power declaration—that no participating country would use its forces in foreign territory except in accordance with the decisions of the International Agency to maintain peace.

The program, covering five main points, will go before the representatives of Russia, Britain and China here this summer at the start of the informal discussions to which those governments were invited yesterday by Secretary Hull.

President Roosevelt discussed the American proposal briefly at his news conference yesterday. He called it a first draft, subject to great changes and vast improvement. It fits in, he said, with the way American aim to work with the rest of the world without in any way detracting from United States independence.

U. S. Air Output 4 Times Nazis

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP) —United States land forces will make their assault on Europe backed up by warplane production which the government estimates is 4 to 1 ahead of Germany and more than 7 to 1 ahead of Japan.

A joint report by the War Production Board and the Aircraft Production Board showed today that this country has turned out 171,257 planes since Pearl Harbor and will make 100,000 planes this year alone.

In numbers U. S. production expanded 3400 per cent between January, 1940—four months after the European war started — and March of this year.

Girl, 2 Brothers and Dad Seized in Student's Murder

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 31 (AP)—A 17-year-old girl who had told officers a lurid story of seeing her "date" shot and killed, and of being criminally attacked four times by the killer, was brought from her home in Tullahoma and placed in cells here last night, along with her father and two brothers.

State Highway Patrol Division Chief W. C. O'Lee said the girl, Ruth Yates, was held as a material witness in the gunshot slaying May 18 of James Robert Sherrill, 17-year-old high school senior, while her father, Roy Yates, and two brothers, Dennis and Harold Yates, were charged with murder.

Miss Yates told officers she was the youth's "date" for the evening. They had been to a movie, and were near Tullahoma when suddenly a shot blasted out and young Sherrill slumped through the partially opened car door to the roadway, she continued.

A man emerged from the darkness, she related, pistol in hand.

"I begged the man to help Jimmy back into the car and take him to a hospital," the girl sobbed, "but he only cursed me.

She said the killer held her captive six hours, drove her about Coffee County in the dead youth's car, attacked her four times, and finally, toward dawn, she was forced to help lift the body from the car and assist in hiding it in bushes.

Next morning she led officers to the scene.

Rites for Girl, 5, Wait Soldier Dad

A heart-broken soldier, Pvt. Joseph P. Reardon, 30, of Athens st., South Boston, was en route home today to attend funeral services for his daughter Patricia, 5, crushed to death under the front trucks of a trolley in Broadway, South Boston. He was inducted only three weeks ago.

Patricia and her sister Mary, 6, who were visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Rose Pyne, raced across the street in the path of the trolley. Mary ran past, but Patricia slipped.

Operator of the trolley, Joseph Venezia, 46, of East Sixth st., South Boston, told police he applied the emergency brakes, but was unable to stop the car in time.

Firemen jacked up the trolley and removed the girl. She was taken to City Hospital where Dr. William Buckley pronounced her dead. Her mother, Mrs. Rose Reardon, identified the body.

Holiday Sojourners Hasten Back to City

Homeward bound vacationists poured into Boston by train, automobile and bus today after a Memorial Day in which the greatest throngs in years paid tribute to the nation's hero dead and prayed for the safety of those now poised for invasion.

The trek back to home and office was largely delayed until today, with transportation and traffic officials reporting only average travel on the holiday.

Veterans of four wars took part in Bay State holiday exercises. They ranged in age from the young wounded veterans of Guadalcanal and Cassino to 103-year-old Thomas Corson of Lynn, veteran of the Civil War, who was the central figure of memorial observance in his home city.

MAYOR SOUNDS KEYNOTE

Keynote of all the exercises—a prayer for lasting peace in the midst of war—was sounded by Mayor Maurice J. Tobin at ceremonies in Charlestown, where the first Gold Star certificates were awarded to next of kin of 27 men and one woman from that district who made the supreme sacrifice.

"It is our fervent prayer," the mayor said, "that the war in Europe will be over before next Memorial Day and our hope that the war with Japan will end soon after.

"We cannot expect that the sacrifice in lives will not be terrible and our fear is great that many more Gold Stars will be placed in the service flag before next year, but our prayer is that the sacrifice will not be in vain."

LEGION SERVICES

American Legion joint services were attended by more than 2500 at Mount Hope Cemetery in Mattapan. Charles S. O'Connor, clerk of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, addressing the throng, said:

"If these spirits of the departed dead who hover over this sacred spot could speak to us, they would plead that we make America itself safe for democracy.

"There are about us, in every secret corner, the forces of Nazism and Fascism and Communism, which tell us that the Declaration of Independence is only a schoolboy's oration and the Constitution a silly document.

"Nazism and Fascism are being destroyed on the battlefields of Europe, but Communism will remain to vitiate the atmosphere of the tomb of Washington and to crumble the walls of our capitol."

At Granary Burying Ground Maj. William W. Drummey, a veteran of 22 months' overseas fighting, addressed the Charitable Irish Society, lauding the part members of the Celtic race are playing in the war all over the world.

Range Oil Rations Cut by New System

WASHINGTON, May 31 (INS)—Acting to conserve critically short supplies of kerosene by cutting down an over-issuance of fuel oil rations for heating stoves, the OPA announced a new system for figuring next season's rations for this type of equipment.

Over-all ceilings for heating stove rations will be established under a new calculation table and ration boards, in computing the ration, will be empowered to issue rations below the ceilings, according to the minimum needs in each case.

OPA said that since the ceiling figure, based on a 550 square-foot maximum floor area, is high enough to provide sufficient oil even to those consumers whose needs are unusually large, the ration to the average consumer can easily be reduced below this ceiling without causing any hardship. Actual computations of the rations for heating stoves will be left to the local boards.

Thousands Fight Forest Fires

Feeding on parched timber and fanned by strong winds, forest fires raged in both Massachusetts and Maine today, with thousands of fire fighters battling fiercely to halt their progress.

A dwelling house and a huge cranberry bog were destroyed at Kingston and another fire threatened a vital Army installation at Sudbury.

Two hundred volunteer fighters from six South Shore towns combined to fight the Kingston blaze, which threatened a sawmill, a poultry farm and several pieces of fire apparatus, which were encircled.

The fire at Sudbury has swept 200 acres but is now believed under control after hours of effort by more than 500 men, including soldiers from Ft. Devens.

Hundreds of acres of Maine woodland have been levelled by eight forest fires, several of which are still out of control. The worst of these was at Roxbury, where 300 acres were swept at a loss estimated at $8000.

Three swiftly spreading fires broke out near Moosehead Lake and Forest Rangers reported they look to be "very bad."

Sees Japs' Ambush Lash Yanks at Biak

(Spencer Davis was the only American newspaperman to remain ashore after the invasion Saturday of Biak in the Schoutens.)

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH SIXTH ARMY FORCES, kmer Village, Biak Island, May) (delayed)—The Japanese ·uched in his limestone caves d his thickly-forested ridges and ited while American troops pushed along the beach road below.

The enemy waited until the spearhead of Sixth Army forces came within a thousand yards of Mokmer airdrome.

Then he struck with all his savagery. He was the same enemy who fought with maniacal cunning at Guadalcanal and Buna and Shaggy Ridge. He was murderous.

One battalion of Yanks had crossed a gully and occupied the lower of two ridges beyond Mokmer village. Another followed close behind. The only opposition that night was an occasional sniper.

Sunday the enemy opened up with machine guns, heavy coast artillery, small arms fire—and the deadly cough of the knee mortar.

CUT AVENUE OF FIRE

He cut an avenue of fire through the first two battalions. Two companies of infantry bore the brunt of that original volley.

"We were right in the middle of it," said 2nd Lieut. Thomas Gildea of Saddle River, N. J. "We were pinned down for three hours and when they lobbed mortars into us, the men scrambled for cover.

"Then they turned on us with their woodpeckers (machine guns), our men were pretty badly chewed up."

"I'll never throw away another tin kelly (steel helmet," put in Pvt. James Elgin of Denver. Elgin, a medical aide, had a perilous time dragging wounded to safety.

"Shell fragments were bursting on all sides," he said. "Some of our men were within 10 feet of them bastards before they opened fire.'

Because of the deadly fire, the forward battalion was cut off and unable to withdraw.

At Mokmer village, a major maintained radio telephone communication with the forward battalion.

SEND BLOOD PLASMA

"They're plastering hell out of us," reported the commander of the trapped battalion. "One of my three tanks was knocked out by a lucky hit. The other two are out of gas. Send me ammunition, blood plasma, morphine and water. It's urgent!"

The men fell back from the exposed ridge of limestone caves along the beachhead. The litter wounded were laid in caves near a trickle of water; the walking wounded manned guns.

"Hell," said the major in the command post, "I can supply those people if they'll send me some buffaloes. Tell them to stay where they are, I'll supply them."

By midday 10 buffaloes (amphibious tractors) arrived from Bosnek beachhead seven miles down coast. They were filled with ammunition, rations and medical supplies, then set out to aid their beleaguered comrades.

BUFFALO RUINS BLOCKADE

As the Buffaloes churned ahead in close formation, the Japs opened fire with shore batteries and heavy motars, in one of the strangest duels of the New Guinea campaign. Six-inch shells burst all around the tractors.

Nine tractors were forced out to sea, but one got through. It was driven by Pfc. Albert M. Eshpeter of Fargo, N. D. Eshpeter had ammunition, water, blood plasma and morphine. He loaded all the wounded he could carry in the Buffalo and ran the gauntlet of fire again, bringing them to the village.

T/Sergt. Thomas B. Newell of Pittsburgh, commanding the Buffalo detachment, thereupon decided to send his amphibians in one at a time

This performance of the Buffalo drivers, under constant fire, enabled the battalion to hold out until nightfall. Then the men rejoined the main detachment.

CASUALTIES FILL TOWN

By late afternoon, Mokmer village was crowded with maimed and dying American soldiers.

Boys with shatered legs, bloody wounds and faces half shot away were stretched under every available shelter. Medical Corpsmen and doctors hurried from case to case, administering plasma and performing emergency operations.

Field hospital facilities were so overtaxed it was necessary to press the buffaloes into service once more to evacuate the men to Bosnek.

American destroyers off Mokmer poured salvos into Jap shore batteries. Boston and Havoc bombers threw a heavy raking fire on the enemy.

During the night, the Japs brought up tanks, infantry and more artillery. They stole out of the hills above Mandom, where our howitzers were pounding the airdrome area, and attacked batteries about two miles north of Bosnek.

Air Raid to Open War Loan Drive

The opening guns in the Fifth War Loan drive will be fired here June 11 and 12 with a statewide air raid test and presentation in Boston Garden of "Direct Hit," the all-star, all-service show.

Civil Air Patrol planes will drop 250,000 paper bombs on Sunday afternoon, June 11, under direction of the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety. The bombs were to have been used in the test scheduled for last Dec. 12 but postponed because of inclement weather.

"Direct Hit," to be played the following night, is sponsored by Boston banks and security dealers of Massachusetts, with admission by bonds bought at such institutions after tomorrow.

The cast, headed by Lieut.-Comdr. Jack Dempsey and Sergt. Gene Autrey, will include a professional group of service people, all of whom were theatrical performers before they exchanged grease paint for a uniform.

"Direct Hit" is the first show in history to include all service branches, having skimmed the cream of G. The production later will play one-night stands throughout New England.

Night Club Tax Cut Up for Senate Action

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—A bill raising the public debt limit above the quarter-trillion dollar mark was the vehicle today for an effort in the Senate to cut the tax on night club checks.

The present debt limit of $210,000,000,000 is rapidly being approached, and the Treasury says it is imperative to raise the ceiling to $260,000,000,000 before the fifth war loan with its $16,000,000,000 goal opens June 12. The House passed the bill for a $240,000,000,000 limit after revising the language to define the debt as including the current redemption value of U. S. securities, rather than their maturity value.

The Senate finance committee went back to the original language, including the $260,000,000,000 maximum.

The amendment to whittle the cabaret tax from 30 per cent to 10 per cent was prepared by Senators McCarran (D.) of Nevada and Downey (D.) of California, who said they had received numerous complaints that dining and drinking places which offer dancing or floor shows were being forced out of business. McCarran contended the Treasury would get more revenue from a lower tax.

The tax, formerly five per cent, went up this spring along with a number of other excise levies.

Paper Drive Nears Climax

More than 500 Boston business concerns have lined up in the Boston Advertising Club's waste paper salvage drive which ends tomorrow, it was announced today by George C. Wiswell, chairman.

Through efforts of that organization, dozens of companies, including industrial plants, banks, food and beverage concerns, still are at work digging out old records, filing and advertising matter to send to war.

"Many plants have through necessity delayed in turning over their waste paper," Wiswell explained. "We urge all concerns that are going to clean house later to telephone the Advertising Club if their contributions exceed 500 pounds. Lesser amounts can be placed in bins throughout the city or put out for the regular household collection."

(Head of Market Garden Dept. Norfolk County Agricultural School, and Director of the Boston Women's Emergency Victory Vegetable Garden on Boston Common.)

The lack of rain which has hampered the efforts of commercial and Victory gardeners alike should be an added incentive for the latter to strive harder than ever.

There is still plenty of time to plant.

Cultivate now to save moisture and encourage fast growth.

PLANTING TOMATOES

For those who set tomato plants late it may be well to again review planting methods. There are a great many tall leggy plants on the market this year due to early hot weather. These plants should be set deep or laid in a trench, leaving only 8 to 10 inches above the ground. Smaller normal plants should be set a little deeper than they were in the plant box.

PLANTING DISTANCES

Then general tendency for trellised or staked tomatoes is to put them closer together. This seems to prevent cracking. If spaced under 15 inches they should be trained to a single stem. Tomatoes grown under flat field culture should be spaced 4 feet between rows and 3-4 feet in the row. If you can plan to mulch, it will help some.

WATCH FOR FLEA BEETLE

Along with the shock of transplanting, tomatoes also usually get hit hard by the flea beetle as soon as they are set in the field. A light dusting with copper-lime dust or half strength bordeaux will help control this pest.

PLANT BEANS NOW

The soil has warmed up well and all the beans can be safely planted. Do not plant all of your beans at one time, if you want a steady supply all summer. Lima beans planted in light soil will give good results. For our conditions, I feel that the bush lima will give more return to the average gardener than the soy-bean.

Do not fertilize the soil too heavily for beans as this encourages plant growth at the expense of production. Watch for bean beetles and prepare to control them early.

The PRIME of LIFE Can Be Prolonged

DR. HENRY C. SHERMAN SAYS:

"A generous supply of Calcium results in better development of the young, a higher norm of adult health, and a longer lease of what we may call the prime of life, the period between maturity and old age."

AM I OLD AT 40?

Old age at 40, 50, 60 or over arrives when the body no longer builds new cells to replace old cells as fast as they wear out. Plenty of Calcium, an important element in cell building, helps fight the onset of OLD AGE and PROLONGS THE PRIME OF LIFE as it helps build new body cells.

ARE MY NAILS BRITTLE?

Calcium is an essential mineral in the nails, bones and teeth. Help so essential as it is for the soft tissues. A Calcium deficiency does not always react in the same manner in different people—in some it may cause weak, soft, brittle nails that break and split easily.

Food rationing may not supply sufficient calcium says Claude Wickard, U. S. Sec. of Agriculture

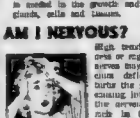
Calcium is more often deficient in the diet than any other mineral. Calcium deficiency, a form of malnutrition, may be a cause of acidity, nervousness, fatigue, weak heart muscle and other effects that hasten the onset of "OLD AGE" and shorten the "PRIME OF LIFE."

A generous supply of Calcium with Phosphorus and Vitamin D is required for the normal Calcium-Phosphorus balance that is essential to health. Calcium, antacid and reconstructive, is needed in the growth and repair of organs, glands, cells and tissues.

DO I TIRE EASILY?

A mineral starved body tires easily. Minerals are necessary for normal strength, energy and vitality. Calcium is one of the most important of these protective forces. A Calcium starved body cannot retain normal strength, energy and vitality, therefore tires easily.

AM I NERVOUS?



High tension and sleeplessness or ragged, jagged, jumpy nerves may be due to a Calcium deficiency which disturbs the parathyroid glands, causing intense sensitivity of the nervous system. KAL is rich in Calcium-Phosphorus and Vitamin D and B1, all in splendid proportions.

CALCIUM — PHOSPHORUS
VITAMIN D — VITAMIN B1

Calcium, Phosphorus and Vitamin D—all three are required together in good proportion for the body to properly absorb Calcium for nourishing and use. Vitamin B1, an important factor in metabolism, is valuable in association with Calcium Phosphorus and Vitamin D. KAL is dependably rich in these elements and furnishes them in the proportions. Add KAL to your daily diet, see how much better you feel after KAL helps you overcome a deficiency of these essentials and helps you maintain a correct Calcium-Phosphorus balance.

Monastery—A British soldier picks his way through the rubble and ruin of the ancient Benedictine Monastery on Monte Cassino, which was blasted by shellfire and crumbled by waves of Allied bombers before it was finally captured by British and Polish troops in the present offensive.

Pattern—Time can go by very slowly when you're very young and confined to a bed . . . but little Carol S., a patient at the Boston Floating Hospital, has found that cutting out paper dolls is lots of fun, and there are always different dresses to cut out and keep little fingers busy.

Free the Prisoners

BELATED ANNOUNCEMENT is made by both the British and the American Governments that Soviet Russia has at last been asked to intercede on behalf of Allied war prisoners in Japanese hands, and has made "representations" to the Tokyo Government.

As so often happens in these affairs, the news was given out in London first and was merely confirmed afterward in Washington.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden made the disclosure to the British House of Commons.

Inquiry at Washington then brought the response that the American government was also interested but that "NO DETAILS WERE AVAILABLE."

It is naturally encouraging to know that SOME MOVE is finally to be made along this line.

As described by Mr. Eden, "satisfaction is sought" on these points:

1—The right of the protecting power and the International Red Cross to visit the camps.

2—A complete list of British prisoners and internees and a list of those who have died.

3—That the Japanese should agree to receive Red Cross supplies sent by neutral ships and to distribute them.

According to the Washington reports permitted by the President, the Russian intercession applies also to American prisoners, but goes no further than the "shipment of supplies."

This contemplated arrangement is typical of the Administration's lethargic attitude toward our Philippine prisoners.

When the Philippines fell, the American Government entrusted our interests in the Far East to Switzerland, a friendly nation but a weak one.

Our prisoners were apparently FORGOTTEN.

Some months after the tragical loss of the islands, our government obtained full information of the hideous mistreatment of the heroes of Bataan and Corregidor, with the deaths of many of them.

This information was SUPPRESSED by the Administration until it was finally FORCED OUT.

Under the shock of the revelations, demand was made that the American Government then seek the good offices of Soviet Russia—which had and still has a peace treaty with Japan—to obtain the release of our imprisoned veterans and nationals.

In his statement to the House of Commons, Foreign Secretary Eden said that when he first asked Russia to intercede for British prisoners, Russia was reluctant because of Switzerland's position, but had finally assented to act.

But what is our government doing now?

If Russia has become OUR intermediary, what will be done to liberate OUR prisoners?

The Hearst newspapers recommended months ago that an American commission be appointed by the President for that purpose, and that it be headed by Mr. Joseph C. Grew, the former Ambassador to Japan.

Will the Administration now delegate such a commission to co-operate with Soviet Russia in redeeming the American prisoners in Japan who are still alive?

And Mr. President, may your petitioners—the press and the people of this once independent United States—humbly pray that a little information regarding their own American affairs be vouchsafed to your humble petitioners from their own capital city of Washington—if it is still their own? And that they be not compelled to receive all their information regarding the action of their government—if it is still their own government—from the British capital of London and by the grace of God and the British Parliament?

(Distributed by King Features Synd., Inc. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Strictly Prohibited.)

WASHINGTON, May 31—Just before he left for overseas to play the bagpipes at the head of an invasion detachment, Lieut.-Col. Charles MacArthur, the playwright, called me up.

"I was at a dinner party in a very high-class joint last night," he said, "having been smuggled in past the butlers and footmen by my wife, a Miss Hayes.

"During the foregoing and scalling I sat next to Senator Francis Maloney, who is a Democrat from Connecticut.

"Either I was stinko—which you know, of course, is impossible—or this Senator Maloney is a very funny man. He told me a batch of stories, having to do with his political career, which kept me in stitches.

"Keeping you in mind, I took notes on a linen napkin. When the hostess and Helen weren't looking I swiped the napkin—and, if you will come over you can have my notes."

I had my secretariat transcribe the napkin and then checked the facts contained thereon with the proper authorities. For the series of stories I have chosen this title:

"Senator Maloney . . . the Man Nobody Remembers."

FOR A FELLOW who has been in politics many years, Senator Maloney has a peculiar phobia. He refuses to deceive strangers by pretending he remembers them, when he doesn't.

This, of course, amounts to political treason, but Senator Maloney feels it is sort of sacred trust.

He was inspired to this heretical attitude by an old Congressman from Texas long gone to his political reward.

There used to be a group in Congress which called itself the Demagogues' Club. Some survivors are still on Capitol Hill, and have occasional meetings, but not with the old zest.

The principle function of the club is to sit around in the cloakrooms, telling impossible stories and propounding impossible questions.

One time a meeting was in full swing when a Congressman suddenly posed the query:

"What would you do if you had a million dollars?"

The answers were many and varied, but all practically reeked with nobility and idealism. Finally the question was put to the Texan, who had been half asleep.

"I know what I would do," said the Texan pulling himself awake. "I would go back to my home town and stroll down the main street. Pretty soon somebody would come up to me and say 'Hello.'

"I would say 'Hello,' back and then the other party would say:

"'You don't know who I am, do you?'

"And I would reply, 'No—and I don't want to know either!'"

ANYWAY, Senator Maloney says that no matter how much he tries to impress people they always seem to have difficulty remembering him.

Back in 1932, he became the first Democrat to be elected to Congress from Connecticut in about 20 years. He attended a victory celebration in New Haven.

His job was to introduce the principal speaker, Rep. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey.

He laid it on thick. Mrs. Norton was touched. Nodding toward Maloney, she said:

"This young man is a fine speaker. Some day I hope we will see him in Congress."

Another time former Senator William H. King of Utah came to New Haven for a celebration. King and Maloney had opposite suites in the Senate Office Building and saw each other every day.

Maloney introduced King with glowing words. King was so moved he threw his arm around Maloney's shoulder and told the gathering:

"You will never know how deeply touched I am by these words of my old friend—Gus Lonergan."

GEORGE HOLDEN TINKHAM, the former Congressman, met Maloney hundreds of times and always went through a stalling process rather than admit nonrecognition.

One day Maloney was in Boston with House Majority Leader John W. McCormack when Tinkham and beard came along. The bush parted to emit a big "Hello!"

This time Maloney decided to call the bluff.

"You don't know who I am, do you?"

Tinkham was taken completely aback. His whiskers fluttered madly. Finally light seemed to dawn.

"Why of course!" he exclaimed. "You're that veteran's case. We gave you good service, didn't we, old boy?"

It happened so often that Senator Maloney decided to take no chances when he toured Connecticut with F. D. R. in 1940. As the train approached his home town, Maloney said:

"Mr. President, this is Meriden. It is the largest silver manufacturing city in the world. Business is good. You might remember these facts for your speech.

"And," he added, "I am a member of the United States Senate. And my name is Maloney."

The night of woe has face

My soul from low desires.
—MICHELANGELO.

FROM THE European fighting front comes a letter from Lieut. D'Arcy McCoy of the Royal Canadian Dragoons. He is the son of Col. Tim McCoy. His grandfather was the distinguished actor, Henry Miller. The lieutenant's first name was inspired by the role his grandfather played in "D'Arcy of the Guards." To his letter the lieutenant attached the following poem, but neglected to name the author:

Listen to mass in the morning
When the sky is bleak and gray;
While the guns roll distant warning
We kneel and pray.
Kneel by a battered table
As the mist walks down the hill,
For Christ is again in a stable
And the world is standing still.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Why haven't you pointed out that Eamon De Valera, president of Ireland, was born in Brooklyn? A—De Valera was born on the East Side of New York city. His father was Spanish; his mother Irish. He was taken to Ireland as a very young child and educated there. Q—My wife makes our cocker spaniel, poor pup, sleep in the cellar. I claim he should have the run of the house at night and then could better serve as a watch dog. How about it? A—You are absolutely right. It is up to you to take a firm stand in the matter. Perhaps you should apply for membership in the Are-We-Mice-or-Men Clubs. This is an organization which battles for rights for husbands.

ASIDES: "As to the origin of the name of the city of Chicago," writes a Westerner, "I am a student of Indian languages. In the Cree language chicakok means 'where skunks abound.' It can also be translated to mean 'where smells abound.'" . . . London theater programs carry the notice: "Ladies are earnestly requested to remove hats on any kind of headdress." That certainly is covering a lot of territory. It is tough enough to face the wrath of a female you have asked to take off her hat. It would be a very brave man who would demand that a woman remove her headdress. As I understand the situation, it takes a woman about eight minutes to put on her hat and about 20 to put on a headdress.

PASSING BY: Freeman Chum, Chinese restaurant maestro. He specializes in those delightful dishes "moo goo gai pan," and "soo chow gai pan." I had my first meal in a Chinese restaurant at the age of 10. It was in Chinatown New York city. Am not a Chinese food fan. All I care for in a Chinese restaurant is the rice and tea . . . Mike Schliesser, Anatomical sculptor. He created the famous chamber of horrors in the Eden Musee on 14th st., New York city. All young oldtimers of Manhattan remember the Eden Musee. It was also famous for its mechanical chess players. Schliesser now makes imitation animals for the movies. His best known creation was King Kong.

PLEASE NOTE: Pittsburgher says his wife wants to have him cured of smoking by hypnotism. Might be a good idea. Then it might not. I knew a woman who had her husband cured of smoking. Now she's sorry. She says he has developed into a terrible grouch and his outlook on life has become so depressing she can hardly stand it. He is more nervous than when smoking. However, he is completely cured and will have nothing more to do with tobacco no matter how much tempted. A very sad case!

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 31—Jean Wallace, pretty young wife of Franchot Tone, is in a battle with her agent, and she asked the Screen Actors' Guild for its verdict.

The quarrel started over her new contract with 20th Century Fox. She claims the agent had nothing to do with her deal and that the arrangement was made directly between herself and Rufus Lamaire, casting head.

She is to have one of the leading roles in "Bon Voyage," a William Bacher picture for 20th, and there is a very definite plan to build her into an important star. Jean was starting her career at Paramount when she married Franchot. Later, she took time out to have her baby.

★ ★ ★

HOT AGAIN is the plan of Lawrence Langner and Theresa Helburn to invest the proceeds of the Theater Guild into a motion picture company. "Oklahoma," "Othello" and "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" have all reaped a golden harvest, and both Miss Helburn and Langner believe no better use could be made of their do-re-mi than to convert it into movies. With their successful plays as nucleus, they cannot go far wrong, or can they? Knowing so little about picture making? Still, they do know the theater, and both arts are blood relations.

★ ★ ★

NORMA BARZMAN, a reporter on the Los Angeles Examiner, has sold her first original yarn for the movies to Warners. It is titled "Don't Ever Leave Me," and none other than Jesse Lasky will produce it. One of the most important roles goes to Clare Foley. The eight-year-old "brat" sister of the stage and screen versions of "Janie." But I am more interested in Miss Barzman than in her, yarn—on account of I was once a gal reporter. She was on the Associated Press staff in Paris in 1939 and is now married to Ben Barzman, who co-authored the story.

★ ★ ★

MAJOR CLARK GABLE has another trip to make to Washington the first of July. He has to take his picture back once again and show it to the powers-that-be. One thing is certain, with all the rumors that pretty, blonde Kay Williams will be the next Mrs. Gable it can not possibly be until after September 1 because she doesn't get her final divorce decree until then. They may marry then, although neither has said anything to lead me to believe they have such plans. But they are very congenial and Clark was extremely lonely until he met Kay.

★ ★ ★

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: What threatened to be a break between Acquanetta and Universal, with the lady asking for a release on her contract, has blown over, and stays put. Well, I've always said you don't get anything good without fighting for it and Acquanetta was fighting for a better break in her screen roles. She put her cards on the table by saying she didn't think the lot was big enough for her and Maria Montez. Not that it was a personal fued between the girls either. Acquanetta just felt she and Maria do the same type of roles and that Maria was getting all the attention from the studio. Acquanetta is now promised bigger and better breaks and Maria, of course, continues to be hot at the box office.

★ ★ ★

MUST BE Columbia didn't buy "Dream With Music," as we stated. At least Dorothy Kilgallen wires she and her husband, Richard Kollmar, have had several nibbles for the film rights and she believes the scenario would be wonderful for Rosalind Russell, Fred MacMurray and Ralph Bellamy. Dorothy tells me the play is going strong and it looks as if it's in for a long run. How come Jack Warner, who was on such a play-buying spree in New York, let this one get away?

★ ★ ★

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Mrs. True Davis is in Reno, and as soon as she gets her freedom Phyllis Brooks will become the next Mrs. Davis. That's our story, told us by Phyllis, and we are sticking to it. She says she did not deny it, as published in another paper. Manny Manheim, well-known radio writer, and Martha Merrill have set the date. John Payne is back in town, dining at the Clover Club with his former girl friend, Sheila Ryan. Monty Woolley, here for three days of retakes, gave a dinner with all pre-war delicacies. Among the beauties gathered around his festive board were Joan Fontaine, Ida Lupino and Anita Loose. Jack Benny is booked for a part in "Hollywood Canteen." He and Mary Livingstone, the Danny Kayes and Mervyn LeRoy all dined together after Jack's show. He has one more show to do and then comes the Bond drive broadcast and all the many other war activities. Maj. John Huston gave a dinner Sunday night, honoring John Beddington, of the Ministry of Information of Great Britain, an old friend. Olivia De Havilland was among the guests, also Greer Garson, Virginia Bruce, escorted by Michael Arlen, and Faye and Bob Riskin; Edgar Bergen, escorting Helen Pierson and Frances Westerman, celebrated his last broadcast of the season with dinner for three. Edgar leaves for Mexico next Monday. The proceeds of the premiere of "Voice in the Wind," at the Hawaii Theater, sponsored by the Aces, goes to the Los Angeles Embarkation Hospital.

Jessie Ralph, who has been ill for so long, died today in Gloucester, Mass. Her friends will be sorry to hear of her passing. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Q—Will you please tell me the difference between an E allotment and an F allowance? D. T., Brighton.

A—Class E allotment is an amount of pay which can be allotted to an individual or institution for the support of the allotment's family or relatives, or for savings. The government makes a contribution to this type allotment. Class F deduction is the $22 or $27 the soldier contributes toward family allowance for his dependents and to which the government adds an amount dependent upon the relationship and degree of dependency.

Q—Having served in the Army for eight months and given an honorable discharge Sept. 20, 1941, would like to know if I am eligible to wear the honorable discharge service button.

A—Yes you are qualified to apply for button.

Q—Does the wife of a soldier receive a regular allowance for the month he enters service if she received the initial allowance? B. McC., Arlington.

A—No. The regular allowance is effective the first day of the month following the soldier's entrance into the service.

Q—I was discharged from the Marine Corps for "reason of unsuitability, not recommended for re-enlistment." Do you think I will be inducted into the Army? J. C., Boston.

A—Depending on your age, you are subject to be called by your draft board. The Army physical requirements, of course, are not as severe as the Marine Corps.

Q—I haven't received the increase in my allotment under the change to the Servicemen's Dependents Act in November, 1943. When I receive it, will it be retroactive? D. A. T., Lawrence.

A—Yes.

June Bridal Revealed

By BETTY ALDEN

Here's the first news that Mrs. Sally Adams McLennen, formerly of Cambridge, is to become the bride of Prof. Henry Radford Hope, also a former resident of Cambridge.

They will be married Saturday, next at the home of Sally's mother, Mrs. Julian Bobbs in Indianapolis and plan to spend the summer at Pleasant Bay on the Cape.

Sally is the former wife of Louis McLennen, Boston attorney. She lived in Cambridge a number of years, was prominent in social activities here and served as chairman of numerous charity balls. In 1940 she and her sister Jane received trust funds of $1,000,000 each when they were named heirs in the will of their father the late W. R. Adams of Indianapolis. Jane made her debut here at a tea given by Mrs. McLennen at her home on Lakeview ave.

Prof. Hope is head of the Fine Arts department of Indiana University. He was educated at the Sorbonne in Paris and received his Ph. D. at Harvard. This past winter his bride-to-be has been taking post graduate courses at Indiana. She is a graduate of Sarah Lawrence College.

★ ★ ★

YOU MIGHT NOT EXPECT A gal as young, pretty and prominent in the social whirl as Nancy Bertelsen to take an interest in politics. But this attractive post deb's hobbies run the gamut from war work to night club crooning and flying, and now she has developed a keen interest in political affairs.

Just back from a successful modelling career in New York she says she is getting ready for an exciting jaunt to Chicago to attend the Republican convention. She will accompany Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, a friend of her mother's and widow of the late American minister to Sweden.

Mrs. Morris is known the world over as an historian, author and social dignitary. She lived many years abroad and has decorations of merit from most of the pre-war monarchs of Europe. She has a number of books to her credit and her experiences at the convention may inspire another work from her facile pen. A few summers ago she gave an elaborate debutante tea for Nancy at her home, "Eaglehead," one of the show places of the North Shore.

MRS. C. DOUGLAS MERCER of Brookline is again an active local member of the executive committee for the Summer Institute for Social Progress, which was cancelled last year due to war conditions, but will again be in session on the Wellesley campus, June 30 to July 14.

Her sister, Dr. Helen Meiklejohn, and brother-in-law, Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, president of the Am. Ass'n for Adult Education, will be speakers on the two week program. Miss M. Louise Walworth is chairman of the conference, which combines expert discussion of key problems with outdoor recreation and informal vacation spirit.

War Job Girls Keep Trim Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Thousands of American women have taken over the jobs our fighting men have left behind . . . in the factories, in the fields, in civilian defense. But, though they may be short on time . . . one look at our typically lovely ladies . . . and it is easy to see that they are long on beauty.

Because time is of the essence . . . every minute has to count and count well . . . our beauties rely on beauty short-cuts, time savers and face savers . . . yet they are eye-appealing, prettily-groomed, and feminine as a flower.

Take lovely Betty, for instance . . . who has the fascinating job of sending our planes out on schedule . . . and because she is outdoors in all kinds of weather . . . has the problem of trying to look her smoothest best at all times. She does . . . and here's how she keeps as pretty as a picture.

FOUNDATION LOTION

To insure her makeup will LAST . . . hour after hour with no hurried trips to the powder room for retouching . . . nor can she because of her on-the-spot important presence . . . she starts with a foundation . . . a creamy, smooth foundation that keeps her skin soft and moist . . . protects it against grime and dust . . . and holds her face powder on extra hours.

This simply swell creamy foundation . . . which takes just one minute to apply . . . serves three ways, you see. Keeping the skin moist is of utmost goodness . . . for the skin is then able to retain the dusting powder for softness.

You know what it is like to be near greasy machines . . . with dust and dirt and grime getting into your hair and on your hands . . . and ultimately on your face. But this foundation protects the complexion against the imbedding of the soot in the skin . . . thereby safeguarding against skin blemishes and eruptions . . . so often caused by excess, accumulated dirt.

NO ASSISTANCE

Unless a foundation insures longer-lasting loveliness . . . giving a smooth mat finish to the skin . . . it is of no beauty assistance to a gal's complexion. If your powder cakes around your nose and the oily areas of the face . . . then your foundation is not the right type for you.

This creamy liquid . . . so delicate itself and so smooth to the touch . . . is bound to satinize your skin . . . for it has just such properties. Take Betty's word for it.

For the name of this soft-skin creamy foundation lotion, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

PERT, SVELTE complexion . . . as lovely as the petals of the choice gardenia . . . is very important to a gal these days of time-needed beauty short-cuts and face savers. If you start off correctly with a creamy smooth foundation that keeps the skin soft and moist . . . half your beauty battle is won . . . and your complexion, too, can be as lovely as Warner Actress Jane Wyman's.

When Answering Telephone

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct for an adult to answer the telephone by saying, "Yes"? I find this practice very rude. To me it always sounds as if they mean "What do you want? I'm busy." And indeed usually I feel so rebuffed that I'm tempted to disconnect my call without speaking. What is your opinion, and what is your reaction to this "yes"? E. C. L.

I'm right with you, dear lady. . . . I shudder when anyone answers my telephone call with that terse "yes" To me it's stark and bleak and upsetting, and I never can convince myself that the person who has this answer-habit has any pleasant feeling about answering the telephone. "Yes" has a pretentiousness and snobbishness about it that the customary and unpretentious "hello" hasn't, and never need have. I too feel, as you do, that the clipped "yes" practically shouts, "I'm busy. Hurry up and say what you want to say." And by that time I don't very much want to say anything, except to apologize for a real, or at least implied, intrusion.

Bare-Back Jacket Dresses Popular

By BETTINA BEDWELL

BARE-BACK fashions, about which I have told you considerable, are about due to get going in a big way, with the arrival of real summer. They are intended to be worn in town and around in the daytime, when they have a bit of jacket to do a cover-up job for bare backs when needed.

The bare-back, or sun-back dress with a tiny jacket, is a style that Claire McCardell, who won first prize in the Fashion Critics Award this year, started last year. This year it is going like wildfire on a dry prairie.

So Claire repeated her original success, and Miss Dulin sketches the new edition for you today. This outfit is in warm brown cotton stitched with white. The jacket is a pint-size bolero with rounded corners and short sleeves. When it's off, the dress shows up as practically backless, and high and surpliced at the neck in front.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday—People wonder, now that so many of our boys are in the British Isles, about their reception over there. I received a letter from Mrs. Lilian A. Howard-Watson of "Niagara," Gwespyr, Holywell, North Wales, which gave me so much pleasure that I am going to give as much of it as I can in this column.

Most of us do not know exactly what billeting is over here.

It means, whether you like it or not, you take into your house the people whom the government assigns to you.

* * *

"DEAR MADAM:

"On Sunday, some weeks ago, the billeting officer approached us about housing American soldiers. We were alloted eleven, and at once their beds and bedding were brought to our house. A few days later the boys arrived.

"I think it was a happy idea to billet in private houses, as in this way we are able to become acquainted with one another in a way which would have been impossible had they been in camps.

"Your boys are so generous hearted, and big enough to admire the unbroken British spirit after having seen the damage at close quarters and the suffering entailed.

* * *

"MOTHER is a justly important person I find in American life, and one day in the kitchen when I requested a giant-framed sergeant to read the Bible portion for the day, he remarked: 'It reminds me of Momma at home.'

"And so the Americans are winning golden opinions over here thereby strengthening the entente between our country and yours, and we have come to the conclusion that the clouds we so much dreaded of this American invasion into our homes are really 'big with mercy and will break with blessings on our head.' Long live America."

Delicious Orange Recipes for June

By MARTHA LEE

EVERYBODY LIKES orange juice and there's no need to pass it up for breakfast because you're short of time if you use the "outsize" Florida Valencia oranges coming into the market now—five million boxes of them! They're big—and you get more juice—which means less time for squeezing and less work for you.

These oranges are a very special batch, for nearly two-thirds of them are the two largest sizes in which oranges are packed. The reason that they're so big and juicy is that they matured quickly because of the hot, dry weather which was followed by heavy rains.

Just think of all the delicious ways you can use this abundant supply of oranges—in fruit cups, salads, cakes, pies, breads, frostings, ice cream, jellies and marmalades, to mention a few.

Orange Filled Rolls

ORANGE JELLY

2 tbsp. gelatin 1 cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
1 cup sugar Dash of salt
1 tsp. grated orange rind
⅓ cup lemon juice
1½ cups orange juice

Soften gelatin in ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes; add hot water, stirring until dissolved; stir in sugar, salt, orange rind and juices, and remaining ¾ cup cold water; pour into mold and chill until firm. Unmold and serve with plain or whipped cream, custard sauce, berries, sliced fruit, or stewed fruit. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

A basket of fragrant orange filled rolls served with cups of piping hot spiced tea have colorful future these summer days ahead. Sunny bits of orange mingle throughout golden brown rolls to make a luscious filling for this favorite yeast dough. These tasty rolls make especially good food for the month of June, as they are good to serve at a shower party, or at just any other pleasant occasion.

The filling for orange filled rolls is a time saver for the busy homemaker. There is no need to grate orange rind or juice the orange. Using ground whole orange adds wise economy to her present list of home management merits.

ORANGE FILLED ROLLS

2 packages yeast, compressed or dry granular 2 eggs, beaten
½ cup lukewarm water
½ cup shortening 1 cup milk
⅓ cup sugar 1 tsp. salt
5½ to 6 cups sifted enriched flour

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, sugar, and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add 2 cups flour. Add softened yeast and eggs. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Form into a ball, place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk (about 2 hours). Punch down. Let rest 10 minutes. Roll out to rectangular sheet ¼ inch thick. Spread with orange filling. Roll up jelly-roll fashion and seal edge. Cut into 1-inch slices. Place cut side down in greased 3-inch muffin pans. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 25 minutes. Makes about 4 dozen 3-inch rolls.

ORANGE FILLING

1 cup ground whole orange (1 large orange) 1 cup sugar
¼ cup enriched flour
¼ cup water ⅛ tsp. salt

Mix together ingredients. Cook until mixture thickens. When cool, spread on dough. Makes enough filling for 4 dozen rolls.

Fashion

STARTLING IS THE WORD for this last, least and most fascinatin' swim suit . . . of brown and white striped jersey . . . with the one-shoulder strap bra accent . . . and the brief side drape trunks . . . caught up with four buttons. We hope only slim, lithe figures will attempt these cloth-conserving beach eye-openers . . . young forms like that of Universal Star Ella Raines—R. M.

Courtesy Tip

Criticism of volunteer workers with whom you are associated these days is glaringly unattractive. Be human enough to respect the fact that they, too, are giving their time and patriotic effort, just as you are, and that they are doubtless trying just as hard as you are, to be helpful. With your insignia, or as your insignia, wear kind words and the manner of consideration and helpfulness.—

NEW YORK, May 31—It bothers me no little when I see girls out for a gay time being decked in service insignia. There is something not quite suitable about a lass dancing a rumba at the Zanzibar wearing captain's bars as costume jewelry.

Of course the invasion quarter-backs are busy as four-star generals these nights in the bistros, and that's all right as long as they're just guessing, not telling. But sometimes I wonder when a tablecloth strategist begins: "Well, they'll probably make the first landing at X—," how close he is to the truth, and does he know it?

The Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference was never much of a secret, but it does seem odd that a New York night club proprietor should have been able on Nov. 27 to confide that the conference, which began the 28th, was going to be held in Iran. Maybe it was just a guess, but I have an uncomfortable feeling that such guesses could lead to disaster.

FRANKIE BOY has contributed more than his vocal talents, his bow tie and his falling lock of hair to the current issue. The historians, the radio comics and the vaudevillians can thank him for inspiring the waves of laughter via the Sinatra gags and Sinatra impersonations. A generation or two ago the Model T Ford had the folks giggling. Now it's the Voice.

It's always struck me as quaint that people from the hinterlands seem to think the words "city" and "sophistication" are synonymous, just as "Broadway" and "hard-boiled" are supposed to mean roughly the same thing. If you're under that impression, too, look in the Broadway souvenir shops, where smart-aleck gadgets play second fiddle to pillows embroidered with "Mother" or "Sweetheart" and other sentimental trifles.

Also watch the "tough" cops in Duffy sq. feeding the pigeons or kibitz at the Little Church Around the Corner as the street crowds see a newly-married couple come out. New York sophisticated? Then so are Sparta, Wis., and Santa Claus, Ind.

I GUESS the most unenvied officeholder in this nation is Gotham's "Little Flower." Poor Butch must have learned that Lincoln was only half right. If you believe the editorials, Butch can't seem to please none of the people none of the time—and twice on Sundays, when he broadcasts . . . Audiences at "Dream With Music" keep saying of Joy Hodges, "Doesn't she remind you of Bette Davis?" She does, too . . . When you open a fresh copy of a magazine, how do you choose which story you'll read first? I select mine first by authors then by the illustrations . . . No wonder "Skating Vanities" has been doing such fantastic business all over the country. An expert in such sporting matters informs me that in the past couple of years the number of roller rinks in the United States has grown from 4500 to a wartime 4500. Me, I can't roller skate or ice skate, but I have a feeling that one or the other is going to get me any minute now.

HOLLYWOOD, May 31—When I patrol Hollywood I like to walk about the various sets and talk to the dress extras, for the majority of them are almost a race apart in the Hollywood scheme of things, and often they are more interesting than the stars. Of course, they haven't the name value.

Lana Turner

To many of the dress extras, working in a picture is a job and none of the fan magazine glamour of Hollywood is attached to it. They come to the studio in their evening clothes, sit around in a night club, drawing room or theater set, finish their stint and then go home as weary as factory workers and shop girls.

The other day while strolling along a studio street I saw a dress extra that I knew. She was wearing an evening gown and eating a hot dog.

"Hello," I said. "What picture are you working in?"

"I'm on Stage 2," she said. "I don't know the name of the picture."

"Who's directing it?" I asked.

"I forget the name of the director. It's a big night club scene. We've been sitting around for days. I think I'll be on it for the rest of the week."

To the dress extra, the name of the picture isn't important. She'll be on it for a day or a week. Then she'll be sitting on another set decorating it.

"Who's in the picture?" I asked.

"Lana Turner and that new leading man. He looks pretty good."

"You mean John Hodiak," I said. "The picture's called 'Marriage Is a Private Affair.'"

"Yeah, that's right. That's it," she answered. "Come down and see me later. It's an interesting set."

"O. K.," I said. And she started back for her routine job in glamorous Hollywood.

* * *

IT IS ODD and I know it, but on my beat I seldom walk past the Beverly Wilshire Hotel without thinking of Edward Burke. Burke is just one of the numerous Broadway playwrights who came to Hollywood and just one of the many people I know who resided at this hotel, but somehow the association between the hotel and the man remains. It may be because the story of Eddie Burke typifies a phase of Hollywood.

There's a novel in it; anyway, a short story. Burke was a successful Broadway playwright who was lured to Hollywood. He came out to write a picture when Winfield Sheehan was in charge of Fox films. He was going to write this picture and then return to Broadway.

He checked into the Beverly Wilshire Hotel for he didn't want to get tied up with a house and a lease. He didn't buy an auto. Why do that? Burke took a taxi to the studio every day, and what's more, he kept his trunk in his room. He was ready to pack after writing that picture.

* * *

FOR DAYS, for months, for years, Burke took a taxi to the studio and kept that trunk in his room at the Beverly Wilshire. A whole regime changed before Burke packed that trunk. Fox Films became 20th Century-Fox and Darryl Zanuck was in charge of the studio. It was only then, and not because Zanuck didn't try to persuade him to stay either, that Burke packed that trunk and checked out of the hotel.

THE FAMOUS CAPE COD PLAYHOUSE has been leased by Gertrude Lawrence for this season, but aside from paying the rent—chiefly to her husband, Lieut. Richard Aldrich—Miss Lawrence's tenancy does not promise immediately to be on the active side . . . The fair and talented Miss Lawrence is concerned at this writing with getting a State Department visa for a journey to her native England.

* * *

YET THERE IS the hope that the residents of the Dennis-Harwich-Hyannis sector of the Cape may see a few productions of "flesh" shows at the Playhouse . . . Francis Hart of Newton, who acts as Lieut. Aldrich's right bower in peaceful times, concluded in a brief chat with this corner that he would welcome a "good lessee who could operate the Playhouse for four or five weeks" . . . This subtenancy would have to be undertaken in July . . . There would seem to be chance, therefore, that Miss Lawrence may be planning a production or two for late summer

JOHN WILLBERG, producer of "One Touch of Venus" and "Porgy and Bess," was part of a holiday ringside party at the Statler which included Guy Lombardo . . . Guy's singing-brother Carmen was present, too . . . The boss of the Royal Canadians told an interesting story about the music of "One Touch of Venus" . . . When that reigning hit was breaking in here in Boston, Guy was playing at the RKO-Boston . . . He sent his arranger to rehearsals of the Wildberg show in order that the Lombardo band might get an early crack at the potential hits.

* * *

"EVERYONE CONNECTED with the production seemed to think that the song 'West Wind' would be the musical hit of the show," Guy said. "Our arranger heard a rundown of the music and reported to me that another number undoubtedly was more 'commercial' than 'West Wind' . . . So we had him make an arrangement of the tune . . . The night that 'One Touch of Venus' was having its premiere in Boston we introduced, for the first time on the air, the tune which our arranger liked . . . It was 'Speak Low'."

* * *

BOSTON'S HOPEFUL SONGWRITERS — of whom there are more than any column conductor likes to think about—should be intrigued by another little musical item, this one supplied by Brother Carmen Lombardo . . . It tells how a song you will be hearing very shortly on the airwaves was born . . . Some years ago, Carmen, who is a prolific composer, was impressed by the drama of an announcement made by the immortal Polish pianist, Paderewski, in which Paderewski said he would never play the piano again.

* * *

"I WROTE A MELODY around an idea which I called 'My Silent Violin'," said Carmen . . . "I gave the tune and title to a good lyric writer, and this good lyric writer, as he usually does, turned out an excellent lyric . . . The story of the lyric was that the violinist of the song would never play again because of the memories conjured by his fiddle-playing . . . I liked the song very much . . . So did one or two publishers . . . But Hitler invaded Poland just as we were trying to market the number . . . The publishers turned the song down, figuring that it was too plaintive for the times, and not in key with the public mood . . . Well, we put the number away, and I didn't think much about it until a few weeks ago when a song publisher asked me to write a rhumba number . . . 'My Silent Violin' was in rhumba tempo . . . I gave the tune to Charlie Tobias, the lyric-writer . . . We will introduce it on the air for the first time in Hartford, Saturday night . . . People say it will be a hit . . . The title is 'We Two'."

'For Keeps' New Comedy Gets Start at Plymouth

By PEGGY DOYLE

"For Keeps," F. Hugh Herbert's new comedy at the Plymouth, is more talky than tantalizing, more girly-girly than galvanizing.

Ostensibly, Mr. Herbert is writing about a temperamental commercial photographer with a Tommy Manville angle on marriage. Actually, the author of Broadway's currently successful "Kiss and Tell" finds himself and his typewriter obsessed with adolescence on the brink of maturity.

Paul Vanda, recently married to his fourth wife, is allegedly the principal of Mr. Herbert's current comedy. As a matter of fact, Mr. Vanda's 15-year-old daughter by his first marriage, moves in and takes over the major part of the dialogue.

As Patricia Kirkland, playwright-producer Jack Kirkland's daughter, plays her, 15-year-old Nancy Vanda has her points. She is an enchanting, quick-silver youngster who discovers romance much too soon for her own good or the good of her father or Mr. Herbert's play.

Along about the second act, she takes over the play, which not being of the "Kiss and Tell" genre, misses, in fact, falls apart.

All of which is much too bad for Miss Kirkland, who is a likeable, attractive youngster except for a tendency to confine her remarks to a select few front rows in the Plymouth. This may be a family failing, in the footlights sense, for Frank Conroy, whose recherche commercial photographer was altogether too uppity and barely audible at the "For Keeps" opening here.

Julie Warren, impersonating his fourth bride, is a lovely person with a great deal of charm and talent.

Raymond Sovey's single setting Commercial Photographer Conroy's domestic shenanigans.

Hitler Gang In 2d Week

"The Hitler Gang," shocking film lowdown on the international gangsters, based on records taken from the Nazis' own secret files, is remaining a second week on the Paramount and Fenway screens.

Names, dates and motives are there, from the beginning of national socialism down through the Beer Hall Putsch in Munich, Hitler's subsequent arrest and imprisonment in Landsberg prison, where he dictated "Mein Kampf" to Rudolph Hess and where Goebbels came to see him with new ideas for Nazism, the rebuilding of the Nazi party with the help of industrialist Fritz Thyssen and others and the climactic murder of Ernst Roehm.

Martin Kosleck's embittered Goebbels, Robert Watson's Hitler and Alexander Pope's gargantuan Goering are startling physical likenesses.

The co-feature, "Jamboree," teams Ruth Terry and George Byron.

MEANWHILE, NARDA IS LOCKED IN THE "HIGH-PRESSURE" ROOM--
IT'S HARD TO BREATHE IN HERE--STUFFY OR SOMETHING --MAKES ME SO DIZZY--CAN HARDLY STAND UP--
OH, MANDRAKE--WHERE ARE YOU? GET ME OUT OF HERE--
5-31
SPECS, DO YOU KNOW WHERE THE CONTROL-BOARD IS FOR THAT HIGH AIR-PRESSURE ROOM?
YES.
BUT IF DOME--
NEVER MIND HIM.. LEAD ME TO THAT BOARD! I'M GOING TO GET NARDA OUT OF THAT HORRIBLE TRAP!

Courtesy Holiday; Dad's Day; Few Suffolk Items

By AUSTEN LAKE

In real Memoriam—So it was a holiday at home. Bands tootled. Soldiers paraded. Colored banners floated. A honey-colored sun beamed down. And we-the-people, thrice blessed with leisure and plenty, had time on our hands. The long stucco grandstand, the awninged clubhouse, the emerald lawns at Suffolk were alive with cash-conscious people. The huge car-barn stadium at Braves Field was loaded with shirt sleeved thousands. The sun-drenched beaches, the cool woodlands, the trout streams and salmon lakes were a-crawl with fun-seekers and all New England was passing through the portals of summer.

Babe Ruth

Which is as it should be. For this is free, unshackled America where no man has a whip-master.

But out yonder where our men form a ring of hot steel around our oversea frontiers, it was merely another leaf from the calendar and another spin on the earth's axis. There are no holidays out there. Just the same torrents of hot sweat, the same skin itch, the same banjo twang of enemy bullets, the same taut nerves, cardboard rations, blood-rimmed eyes and injections of blood plasma. So what? So that we-the-people, possessors of the earth's beatitudes, may have our leisure and plenty.

These holidays bear a tag—"By courtesy of four million AEF fighters." We can make a small part payment at the Red Cross blood bank. It may mean a holiday from death for one of OURS. Call Kenmore 9060.

DAD BOUGHT GROCERIES

Paternal anniversary—Apropos of the much-advertised Father's Day on June 18 it occurs that the vast majority of our more prominent U. S. athletes, past and present, were sired by inoffensive, non-muscular and undistinguished old codgers who couldn't hit a baseball with a bull fiddle, or punch a dent in a pound of lard.

Babe Ruth's dad was a silent, quiet saloon keeper in Baltimore. Don Budge's pop drove a laundry truck and thought a tennis racket was a new kind of swindle. Joe, Vince and Dom Di Maggios' salty sire was a West Coast fisherman who used to spank his kids with a flounder when they frittered away their working time on the ball fields. Joe Louis' father was a sun-withered, bent backed, timid and underprivileged share cropper who never saw a prize fight. Sonja Henie's papa was a florid, paunchy store keeper. Et cetera and so on.

Truth is that the sons of the great stars of the past are rarely more than pale, carbon copies of their old gents. And curiously enough the progeny of the greatest athletes run to girls.

Suffolk's stock sheet—Some notion of the detail required to run a race track comes with a peek at Suffolk's purchase lists. Such items as: 10 cases of fly paper, 5000 sheets in each; 3 carloads of rust killer to keep the horse barn's water supply open; 10 tons of calcium chloride for laying dust in the stable area; 10 bags of duck food to feed the ornamental fowls in the lagoon; 21 million daily doubles tickets; 3 carloads of tan bark for the paddock and walking ring.

On a holiday like Monday the concessions prepare 45,000 hot dogs and rolls, 30,000 bottles of tonic, 12,000 cups of coffee, 5000 assorted sandwiches, 3000 pies. Two ambulances waited for casualties and a two bed hospital was ready, attended by Doctors Martin J. Spellman and Tom Wallow.

Sport roll call—"What sport is most difficult to learn?" asks Tech.-Sergt. Bill Cohane of the Army Base. In my opinion baseball and hockey, among the team games; golf and tennis among the individual ones. To attain top flight perfection these require longest and most patient preparation and have their roots set in youthful beginnings.

Most precise game—golf. Fastest—hockey. Easiest to learn—football and wrestling. Most wearing, boxing, tennis, handball, football. Goofiest—marathoning and weight lifting. Most mechanical—eight-oared rowing. Most fun—fibbing in your elder age about how good you were when you had your youthful rubber.

COLUMNISTS OPEN WARFARE

Cream puff tiff—We newspaper columnists are a funny breed, if I may coin a phrase. So just now two of the Boston brethren are screaming at each other in ink and heaving such blunt instruments as "truth," and stabbing each other with "honor" and hatcheting mutually with "integrity" until you would expect the Red Cross to come running with wash basins to catch their leaking plasma for the blood bank. And over what? Because one brother wrote something the other brother didn't agree with. Odds wounds and Gadzooks! So the party of the first part had not alternative with dignity, but to mount his silver stallion, accouter himself in Galahad armour and gallop to the wars.

Nothing physical of course, because most of us columnists are vitamin minus, myopic, scrawney and flabby types who couldn't sock a hole in a custard pie. But just let us lock ourselves in a news cell, sit on the heel of our spines and we'll typewrite with the spirit and muscular might of an archangel. But don't let anybody yell "boo" through the letter slot or we'll shudder clean out of our skins. Not that I wish to volunteer for any feuds in this warzone. But in the above category I would place the peroxide pontificator and professional bleeding heart, name of Elisha W. Cunningham. And that editorial old maid and career hysteric, Kernal Dave Egan. To which group I would hastily add myself, before they do. Now listen to 'em scream.

Mad Betting Spree at Suffolk Holiday Show

By BILL SMITH

Thirty-five thousand racing fans stormed the heights of Suffolk Downs on Memorial Day in one of the greatest betting sprees in New England history. A colorful crowd —and it was a color predominantly long-green swarmed over every inch of the rambling steel and granite grandstand and clubhouse, its tenacles looping out and clinging to the paddock and betting ring on its way.

They had money in their pockets and betting on their minds, these 35,000 patrons of King Horse. The racing itself, with just a mediocre card, seemed to be secondary to the important issue of breaking every Massachusetts pari-mutuel record.

With the gates open early, they came early, setting out their lunch boxes on the lawns, munching hot dogs and gargling coca-colas and watching the ever-mounting total as revealed by the blinkers on the infield board.

When it was all over, the iron men had been massaged to the tune of a cool $1,401,760 for the eight-race card. This was below the all-time record set at Narragansett Park last Labor Day when $1,543,979 was wagered on a nine-race card.

The previous Memorial Day high was set in 1943 when the total betting reached $1,295,019, but it was a foregone conclusion that mark would be shattered as early as the second race when the daily double pool attained a new elevation of $79,734 as compared to $67,420 made a year ago.

TOUGH ON WINDOWS

Earl Gibson's mutuel staff, including the women sellers, received a hectic workout during the eight-race card, and there was many a sigh of relief when the ever steady pressure was eased up.

The largest handle of the day was reached in the eighth and final event when $196,744 was poured through the machines. Losers were trying to get even and winners were trying to walk away with race track.

Feature attraction of the holiday was "The Tomasello Memorial Handicap," named in honor of the contractor who built the Suffolk Downs strip on a wasteland.

Mintlock was a surprise winner of the $5000 added handicap when he won a photo finish decision over Sollure and Valdina Alpha who finished in a dead heat for second place.

Diego Red was the first to break in front as the barrier was sprung on the seven-horse field and the son of Sun Teddy set a rapid early pace with Doublrab and Sollure right behind.

FINE REWARD FOR BRENNAN —Mrs. Joseph A. Tomasello, widow of the man in whose honor the Tomasello Memorial Handicap was named, presented Jockey Jimmy Brennan a $100 War Bond for his winning ride in that race yesterday afternoon at Suffolk Downs.

For a half-mile, Diego Red and Sollure battled it out, but the latter was shut off and had to be taken back at the far turn and Doublrab moved up to challenge for the lead.

Turning into the stretch, the two horses raced as a team but Doublrab's 126 pounds proved to be too much of a burden and the grey ghost, winner of Saturday's feature race, tossed in the sponge. It was then that Mintlock, under a feather impost of 103 pounds, made his move and as the wire came in sight appeared to have the race tucked away.

Sollure, despite his earlier racing trouble, came with a belated rush along with Valdina Alpha and the two thoroughbreds converged on Mintlock but it was too late and the latter received the camera award although it was unable to separate the Sollure and Valdina Alpha for the runner-up award.

Mintlock picked up $4090 for his owner, Charles Ruffi and covered the six furlongs in 1:11 1-5 to pay $15.80, $6.00, $4.80. Sollure was $3.00, $4.20 and Valdina Alpha returned $4.80, $6.60.

Longshot daily double players had their inning when Hasty Wire who has been trailing his fields in recent starts, came to life with a bang to annex the opening heat, teamed up with Wallon, winner of the second race to return $231.40 for the usual $2 investment and there were 310 ticket holders who collected the above amount.

Bull Reigh Close to Mark at Bay Meadows

SAN MATEO, Cal., May 31 (AP)—Bull Reigh was clocked within one-fifth of a second of his world record 1:42 for the mile and-sixteenth yesterday as he galloped to a two and a half length victory over War Knight in the $5000 added Memorial Day Handicap at Bay Meadows. A holiday crowd of 18,589 was the fourth largest in the track's history.

Long Shot Captures Hawthorne Feature

CHICAGO, May 31 (INS)—Quizzle, an outsider, romped home yesterday with the $5000 added Francis S. Peabody Memorial Handicap on the Lincoln Fields program at Hawthorne Park.

J. Higley booted Quizzle to victory over Night Shadow which was second and Valdina Foe which ran third.

Quizzle paid $32.60, $12.20 and $7.60; Night Shadow, $9.40 and $6., and Valdina Foe, $6. The time was 1:46 for the mile and one-sixteenth.

Navy Silences Guns Of Arsenal Outfit

The Watertown Arsenal almost accomplished its objective on Monday night when the gun makers gave the Navy Yard a scare before going down to a one run defeat, and now the two resume their battle tonight at Healy Field.

In the other games tonight the Linehan Club will attempt to make it two in a row over Lawley's at Garvey Field; the Trailways will try to avenge their earlier defeat by the West Roxbury A. A. while playing their initial game at Cleveland Circle; and Hicks Engineering entertains the high flying Casey Club at Draper Field.

Illness Brings End to 'Dynamiter' as Athlete

By JACK CONWAY

GUS SONNENBERG, former Dartmouth and University of Detroit football great who skyrocketed wrestling into a million-dollar sport, will probably never compete as an athlete again. The famous old Dynamiter, now a Navy specialist, has been confined for five months to the hospital at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station outside of Chicago.

Other than his desire to win the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world, Sonnenberg's greatest ambition in life was to do his part in the war. Gus encountered numerous obstacles when he tried to get into the service. He first applied for a post as an Army athletic director, but was turned down.

Gus Sonnenberg

During a trip to Camp Edwards I met Gus. While denied the privilege of joining the Army, he was not discouraged. He arranged to act as a civilian sports instructor. He was instrumental in teaching thousands of youngsters preparing to go overseas how to handle themselves in hand-to-hand combat.

"I feel that by doing my part, I shall finally be able to get into service," Gus told me.

Sonnenberg was given his opportunity in the Navy. While training Navy men at Bainbridge, Md., Gus was taken ill. He was later transferred to the hospital at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

Great Football Star

THE OLD Dynamiter was a famous football star when at Dartmouth. He later moved on to the University of Detroit. He was All-America as a tackle.

Gus taught chemistry for a time in a high school in Detroit, then went to Providence as an automobile salesman.

One night Gus was prevailed upon to take part in a wrestling bout in Providence. At the time he was getting $25 a week from his job as an uatomobile salesman and he could use the extra money. He accepted.

With no knowledge of regulation wrestling holds, Sonnenberg used football tactics, relying upon a flying tackle to down his opponent. He was an immediate sensation. There were other bouts in Providence, and finally Sonny was brought to Boston by Paul Bowser.

The night Gus went through the ropes at the Arena after missing a tackle in a bout with Strangler Lewis, he suffered a severe concussion of the brain when his head hit the concrete floor. In leaving the ring, Sonny cleared this writer's head by a scant six inches.

Later, when Sonny won the championship from Lewis at the Garden, the show drew $72,000 with a sellout crowd. He then sold out the Garden with Joe Malcewicz and other opponents.

Gus became a national sensation and drew millions of dollars at the gate.

Unfortunate in Love

GUS WAS unfortunate in love. He first married Marie Elliot of Belmont who won fame in the movies under the name of Judith Allen. This marriage ended in the divorce court as did a subsequent marriage to a New York girl.

I always thought the Dynamiter retained all of his love for Judth Allen. It was unfortunate for their happiness that each wished to devote much time to their own professional careers.

Sonny's many New England friends will be rooting for him to regain his health. When peace is restored, I look for Gus to become a promoter. He has had a varied career in sports and knows people in all parts of the country. He could do well as a football or wrestling promoter.

Like most other people who made money quickly, Gus did not hold on to a great part of his riches. He lived and was good to his family and to his friends. He got more enjoyment out of life than most people do. That is often greater compensation than money stacked up in a bank.

Acting against the advice of his doctors, Sonny left a hospital in Albany to come to Boston to wrestle Jack Sherry for a Christmas Basket Fund. The day after his victory on the mat he collapsed and it was found he was ill with pneumonia.

'Y' Centennial Games Classy

By MIKE GILLOOLY

They're going all out to make the Centennial games of the Y. M. C. A. the biggest sports carnival in New England in recent years. And it's beginning to look as though only a cloudburst could prevent the "Y" officials from reaching their goal with an entry list nearing the 1200 mark predicted for the sports carnival which will occupy Harvard Stadium, Soldiers Field and Harvard pool next Saturday morning and afternoon.

In quantity and primary interest, the annual Reggie meet, a portion of the "three-in-one" affairs for leg-artists, will top the program with well over 300 boys from the Boston schools taking over with trials and finals in the Stadium.

The Joe McKenney conference of intown schoolboys will open the program with trials in the Reggies at 9:30 in the morning in track and field events. During the course of the afternoon, the Boston athletes will hold their finals—and of course, Boston English will rule the favorite and will, again, be defending champion—in conjunction with the Interscholastic Meet for Suburban schools and the open A.A.U. squabble.

Competition will be in the usual three classes with Public Latin, Mechanic Arts, Hyde Park and Brighton expected to put the pressure on Coach Bill Ohrenberger's boys, runners-up in the recent state meet.

Six schools, topped by Woburn's list of eight boys, have filed for the interscholastic festival. Others at first counting included state titlist, Malden, with Allen Wolozin, Allan White and Art Marchinko included in the first draft list, Braintree, Somerville, Waltham and Lowell making up the field.

Nate Andrews Turns In Stellar Box Effort

EVERYBODY PULLS FOR NATE—Bulky Nate Andrews turned in a four hit 1 to 0 shut out masterpiece against the champion Cards yesterday. The courageous Nate was aided by Tommy Holmes, whose circuit drive in the eighth frame of the first game settled the issue.

By BILL GRIMES

"Anytime we get the pitching Nate Andrews displayed yesterday, we'll battle any club in this league to the finish," declared Manager Bob Coleman." "But, when we come up with the type of hurling that Hutchinson and Cardoni produced, we're dead pigeons,

"I thought the first game was one of the best I've seen in years. And, I might as well add, that the second was the worst. Or, at least, it compared favorably with that 16 to something we lost to the Cubs a week ago Sunday in Chicago.

"Andrews has never looked more effective to me. Billy Southworth has another great club under his wing. Probably, it isn't the best that ever wore Cardinal uniforms, but it will do until a better one comes along.

"The Cards are fast, smart and they can apply the old pressure in the pinches. Moreover, they came here sore as boils over the setback the Giants gave them in New York.

"Andrews didn't make a careless pitch all afternoon. He worked carefully on every batter. And, the fact that he was able to hold the league champions to four hits is a grand tribute to his effectiveness.

"Harry Gumbert, also, pitched a fine game. He had the Braves off stride most of the game with his change ups. He kept feeding our power hitters change of pace serves. He did have trouble with Connie Ryan, who nicked him for two doubles, both of which were very well stroked and carried against the centerfield fence.

BARRETT VS. LANIER

"Since we returned home I've noticed a change in Tommy Holmes' mental attitude in regards to hitting in Braves Field. With that right field fence within his range, Tommy has been pulling balls more frequently. The one he pulled off Gumbert in the 8th yesterday, was the pay off, for he crashed into the Cardinals' bull pen and gave Nate Andrews a well deserved victory."

Charlie "Red" Barrett will oppose Max Lanier, Billy Southworth's great southpaw, this afternoon in the third game of the Braves-St. Louis series. Barrett lost a tough one to the Cubs last Saturday and despite the fact that Lanier is the top ranking southpaw hurler of the league, is due to win one.

In the fourth and final game tomorrow afternoon, Al Javery will oppose George Munger, who has been accepted for the armed forces and is waiting his call.

Jots From Wigwam

It was almost a foregone conclusion that the military would reject Al Javery, due to his varicose veins . . . And, it's an even bet that "Butch" Nieman will receive a medical discharge soon after he reports for service . . . After yesterday's doubleheader, Pres. Bob Quinn and the directors of the Braves were in conference . . . The old tin can will soon be heard rattling behind a couple of pitchers . . . When the Cardinals went to bat in the 9th, Al Javery and Mike Sandlock went down to the area between the grand stand and left field bleachers to warm up, in the event that Nate got in a jam . . . Umpires Reardon and Jorda were right on the play when Tommy Holmes nailed Danny Litwhiler trying to make a double on his smash against the center field fence . . . Many of the new balls, which National League clubs are receiving, are strained with oil . . . They are so slippery that they cannot be used in games . . . Ira Hutchinson blew his chances of being a relief pitcher last week and yesterday, he bowed out as a starting hurler . . . Stan Klopp did a fine job, after he got started, when he took over for "Hutch" and in all probability will do most of the rescuing from here in in . . . Connie Ryan grabbed himself three doubles yesterday . . . "Whitey" Wietelmann changes his batting stances as often as does Eddie Miller.

Ott Hit 3 Homers In Double Victory

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The home run hitters made a memorable day of Memorial Day in the major leagues, 23 round-trippers being blasted as the national circuit led the way with 16.

Mel Ott, manager of the New York Giants, took control of the four-ply parade by connecting for three in the double win over Chicago's Cubs, but Whitey Kurowski of the Cards smacked a pair to stay in the race.

Ott climbed up to 10 for the season, getting six in the last four days, while Kurowski hit his seventh and eighth, as the league-leading Cards bounded back from a 1-0 shutout at the hands of Boston to smother the Braves 13-3 in the afterpiece, for the day's only even break.

TWO WINS FOR BROOKLYN

In the other National League twin bills Brooklyn took two from Pittsburgh, 9-3 and 4-3, and Cincinnati leaped into second place with 4-3 and 7-4 conquests over Philadelphia. The Giants just nosed out the Cubs in their twin bill, 6-5 and 5-4, with Ott's pair of circuit belts, each with one on, deciding the opener.

His second-game homer was the big blow in a three-run sixth-inning splurge from which the Cubs never recovered, although they shoved over three runs in the ninth before Ace Adams put out the fire.

A total of 88,685 fans paid to see the National League twin attractions, 24,763 at Brooklyn, 21,619 at New York, 20,707 at Boston and 21,566 at Philadelphia.

Other home-hitters in the National League barrage were Bill Nicholson, Lou Novikoff and Andy Pafko of Chicago; Augie Galan, Dixie Walker and Frenchy Bordagary of Brooklyn; Jim Russell and Babe Dahlgren of Pittsburgh; Chet Ross of Boston and Frank McCormick of Cincinnati.

HOMER BEATS YANKS

The big blow in the American was that of Dizzy Trout of Detroit, who blasted a ninth-inning homer to beat the New York Yanks, 2 to 1, behind his own seven-hit hurling. The hitherton tame Tigers went on to make a clean sweep of it over the world champs, 4 to 1, in the second, as 37,685 fans, the day's No. 1 crowd, cheered 'em on.

Cleveland swept to 9-3 and 4-3 victories over Boston before 11,199 customers, and Chicago held Philadelphia helpless in winning a pair, 5-1 and 2-1, with 15,037 fans in the stands. St. Louis wrecked Washington's bid for second place by trimming the Senators twice, 6-4 and 4-2, although outhit in each contest. The Browns climbed within a half-game of the Yankees.

A crowd of 7414 saw the contest, hiking the American League total attendance to 71,335.

In addition to Trout's game-winning blast against the Yanks, other American League home-run hitters were Roy Cullenbine of Cleveland, Jim Tabor of Boston, Nick Etten of New York, Chet Laabs of St. Louis, Ford Garrison of Philadelphia, and George Case of Washington.
